Villages in Honnavar 'missing'; change in national border raises hackles

BOSKY KHANNA @ Bengaluru

WHERE have the villages and hamlets in Honnavar gone? This is the question local residents and Central Government officials are now asking the State Government.

The discrepancy was noticed when coastal zonal management officials were assessing the maps to chalk out the coastal zonal regulations and found Survey No. 305 at Honnavar port area in Karwar missing from records. It has also caught the attention of Survey of India, which has shot off a letter to the Uttara Kannada Deputy Commissioner and District Magistrate, questioning the wrong depiction of the Indian coastline.

Acting on a complaint raised by local residents, the Survey of India has pointed out that borders of coastline villages -- Pavinkurva, Karki, Mallukurva and Kasarkod villages in Honnavar taluk --have been altered by the Uttar Kannada district administration and revenue maps too have been changed. The letter states that any change in the coastline or coastal border is against the coastal zone management plan maps, which were approved in 2018. It has sought the relevant maps at the earliest from the State Government.

The land in question accounts for 44 hectares which is part of the Sagarmala project to improve ports in the country. "Alterations to coastal boundaries will have an impact on international boundaries. So, tracing the boundaries is all the more crucial. The ministry of defence too will get involved as there is an order that no coastal boundary can be altered," said a surveyor.

> It is difficult to believe that a survey number is missing. It could be an additional land being added or getting washed away due to soil erosion
> — Harish Kumar K, Deputy Commissioner, Uttar Kannada (since transferred)

He said that the missing area came to light when they were comparing the existing maps with the base maps of the revenue department. "The base maps showed Survey Number 305, which is missing in the recent revenue maps. The area was, however, part of the coastal zoning map when the regulations were decided," he added.

Combative Nirmala: Rahul a 'Doomsday man'

'Ex-Cong chief insulting Constitutional bodies'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

IN a scathing counter-attack on Rahul Gandhi for his relentless targeting of the government over the farm laws and the LAC standoff with China, Union Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Saturday dubbed the former Congress president "Doomsday man for India".

During her reply to the Budget discussion in the Lok Sabha, Sitharaman said the former Congress chief was constantly insulting constitutional functionaries and institutions, betraying a lack of belief in a democratically elected parliamentary system. He had joined the "break India fringe group" and was continuously creating false narratives to demean India, the minister alleged.

The Congress "makes allegations, uses abusive language, but when under parliamentary procedure they have to respond to... they only shout and walk out", the minister added.

Responding to the allegations of the government promoting crony capitalism, she asserted that the Hum Do, Hamare Do jibe that Gandhi had been taking on the government was more apt for his family. "In banks, you did phone banking and left huge NPAs. This is one tendency, create institutions and use them for Hum Do Hamare Do and at the end of the day keep accusing others" said a combative Sitharaman.

21-yr-old activist 'picked up' in B'luru for Greta 'toolkit'

BALA CHAUHAN @ Bengaluru

IN a closely-guarded operation, the Delhi police special cell on Saturday reportedly 'picked' up Disha Ravi -- a young student climate activist and one of the founders of 'Fridays For Future' (FFF) campaign -- from North Bengaluru for questioning for allegedly disseminating the 'toolkit' related to farmer protests in Delhi through social media sites, said sources.

According to highly-placed sources, Disha (21) was 'picked' up from her house in Soladevanahalli. She is the co-founder of FFF – a global climate strike movement that started in August 2018, when internationally-known teenaged Swedish climate activist Greta Thunberg began a school strike for climate – in Bengaluru. Bengaluru police remained tightlipped about the operation.

Disha, a Bachelor of Business Administration graduate from Mount Carmel College, is working as a culinary experience manager with Good Mylk company. She was working from home when she was picked up, sources said. Her father is an athletics coach in Mysuru, while mother is a housewife.

The cybercrime special cell of the Delhi Police had registered a First Information Report (FIR) on February 4 on charges of sedition, criminal conspiracy and promoting hatred among groups under Sections 124A, 120A and 153 A of the Indian Penal Code against the "creators" of a 'toolkit' on farmer protests, which was shared by Thunberg. The 18-year-old had deleted the original tweet but had subsequently tweeted another toolkit.

Right to protest anywhere is not absolute, says SC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

REITERATING that prolonged protests can't be at the cost of continued occupation of public spaces as they affect the rights of others, the Supreme Court has dismissed the review petitions challenging its October 2020 verdict on the Shaheen Bagh protests.

A bench of justices S K Kaul, Aniruddha Bose and Krishna Murari rejected the plea filed by 12 persons seeking a review of its October 2020 verdict, which held public spaces can't be occupied indefinitely. "(The) constitutional scheme comes with a right to protest and express dissent but with an obligation to have certain duties. The right to protest can't be anytime and everywhere. There may be some spontaneous protests but in case of prolonged protest, there can't be continued occupation of public place," the bench held. P10

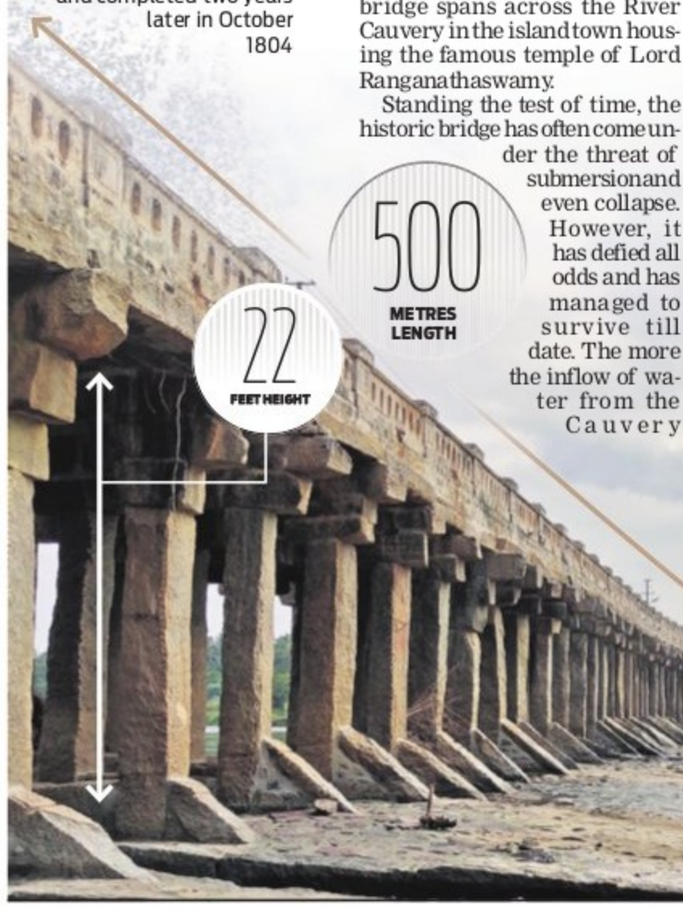
Wellesley Bridge in Srirangapatna weathers time and floods

20 FEET WIDE

ENGINEERING MARVEL
This engineering marvel was built using monolithic stone pillars. As per an inscription stone just next to the bridge, the construction was taken up in August 1802 by Dewan Poornaiah and completed two years later in October 1804



500 METRES LENGTH

22 FEET HEIGHT

MEERA BHARDWAJ @ Srirangapatna

WHEN you are over 200 years old, you know you have seen history happening. And you know you have been bridging the yesterdays with the todays. The Wellesley Bridge, built in Seringapatam (Srirangapatna) in 1804 after the fall of Tipu Sultan in the fourth Anglo-Mysore war, still carries traffic today. Surviving for more than two centuries, this oldest road bridge spans across the River Cauvery in the island town housing the famous temple of Lord Ranganathaswamy.

Standing the test of time, the historic bridge has often come under the threat of submersion and even collapse. However, it has defied all odds and has managed to survive till date. The more the inflow of water from the Cauvery catchment areas in Kodagu district, the more the bridge has had to bear the brunt of heavy water releases, local people say. This has been acute during monsoons when the bridge is almost submerged under releases of more than one lakh cusecs of water from the KRS Dam.

Located on the Bengaluru-Mysuru highway, the structure is still being used for vehicular movement, but one can only see bicycles, motorbikes and occasionally some four-wheelers. Standing on the bridge, one can literally feel the movement of the vehicles making a tapping sound.

Considering its antiquity, the bridge is being repaired by the State archaeology and museums department with the tourism department providing about Rs 28 lakh. Owing to heavy pressure exerted by the river during monsoons, the structure had weakened. The bulk of the repair work included building the retaining wall as a portion of it had collapsed. All the materials used -- limestone, small stones and burnt bricks – are the same ones used during its construction. The vegetation covering this wall and the roots of some trees that were causing cracks in the bridge have been removed. Further, a lot of waste including branches, plastic debris and old clothes that were stuck in the pillars have also been removed but debris continues to accumulate as people dump rubbish.

A wonderful structure that has stood the test of time. The bridge was documented after a century of its construction. If the department has conserved it in the original manner, the Wellesley Bridge will survive for a long time. It was built using flag stones, in fact, large pieces which wouldn't move being dead weight. Also, all structures those days had a bit of artistry

— Yashaswini Sharma, architect, urban historian & author

The work included restoring both the pillars as also the bridge. With the base of the bridge damaged, some stones have been replaced, other worn-out portions have been cemented. Small crevices have been sealed to prevent any growth of plants. The bridge has been made stronger to withstand the pressure from heavy water flows.

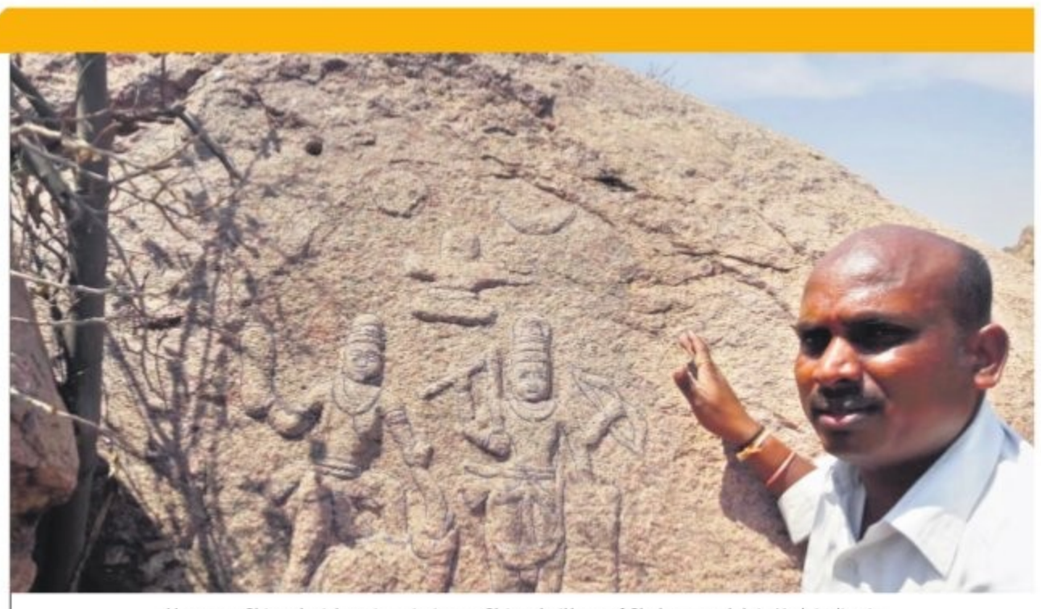
Says a State Archaeology and Museums department official, "Work on the renovation got delayed due to the pandemic, it should have started in March-April. However, work was taken up during October with funds provided by the tourism department. Some 10-15 per cent of the work remains and it will be completed by the end of March."

Advocate and local temple priest Murali says, "After the construction of the new bridge, the Wellesley bridge is hardly used. In fact, the movement of heavy vehicles has been banned. But thankfully, the bridge was recently renovated."

It was built under the directions of Dewan Poornaiah during the reign of Mummadi Krishnaraja Wodeyar, at a cost of Rs 5.5 lakh. It was later named as Wellesley Bridge after the then British governor general, the Marquis of Wellesley. Interestingly, Curzon's Collection of 'Souvenir of Mysore Album' with an old photo taken by an unknown photographer in 1890s describes the bridge as, "It is recognized as an interesting specimen of native architecture and it has withstood and survived the heaviest floods for a century without injury."

As we take a look at the bridge, it is completely standing on solid stone pillars with three pillars each in a row. The pillars have been capped with 2-3 layered stone corbels jutting out to support them to meet any additional weight. These have been then surmounted by four layered stone girders on which the flags of the roadway have been laid.

Local historians say it is built on monolithic stone pillars. Hundreds of stone pillars, corbels, girders, slabs and lime mortar have been used to provide stability and longevity. And if it is still standing today, it clearly demonstrates the prowess of our local builders in the olden days.



Monappa Shirwal with an inscription at Shirwal village of Shahapur taluk in Yadgir district

HE TELLS ANCIENT STORIES WRITTEN IN STONE

RAMKRISHNA BADSESHI @Kalaburagi

ANYONE who has tried researching history will know that attempts to look into the past often raise more questions than they answer. But that is also what makes history so interesting, as Monappa Shirwal knows all too well. Monappa's fascination with history began as a boy growing up in Shirwal village of Shahapur taluk, Yadgir district.

"My birth place was my inspiration. There is a 11th century temple dedicated to Nannaiah and Naadaiah in my village. There were lots of inscriptions lying around," the 45-year-old government official says.

He was awarded a PhD in history by Gulbarga University for his thesis titled 'The Cultural Study of Inscriptions of Kalaburagi district' completed under the guidance of Prof P K Khandoba.

And even though he passed the Karnataka Administrative Services exam in 2015 and became an Assistant Treasury Officer, he has continued to indulge his passion for the mysteries of inscriptions, and spends two hours a day for some kind of epigraphy-related research.

In the past decade, he has found and researched 22 stone inscriptions and 15 stone sculptures in Yadgir, Kalaburagi and Raichur districts, and narrated the stories hidden in them in newspaper articles, research papers, and a book recently published by Kannada University.

One of those inscriptions raises interesting toponymic questions about present-day Shahpur. "Previously, most inscriptions found on the Sagaradri hills of Shahapur town were written in Persian and Arabic. But during my field work a year ago, the first inscription written in Halegannada was found," Monappa says.

The thousand-year-old inscription talks about a Sagara town located in the Sagaradri hills, which ended up being divided into Hale Sagara, Dodda Sagara and Sagara due to war. Even today, a large village called Sagara still exists. The inscription also mentions that the place was previously called Devadurga, he says. While this inscription has thrown up a puzzle for researchers, others have thrown light on the socio-cultural life of their times. Monappa has found many memorial stones containing inscriptions. For instance, a 10th century inscription on a memorial stone at Hosakere village of Shahpur taluk details an instance of atma bali, or self-sacrifice, in this case, committed for the welfare of the king.

It could take days or even years to wade through the maze of information that an inscription contains. One must first figure the language it is written in and then be able to understand the script. Several of the inscriptions Monappa has found are written in the Brahmi script.

Monappa is multi-lingual: He can read and write Kannada, English and Hindi, and understands Telugu, Gujarati and Marathi. Most important perhaps, is his ability to read the Brahmi script. But a lot of the information contained in archaeological objects is eroded due to exposure to the elements and disfiguration by humans. "Sometimes people disfigure inscriptions without knowing their importance, and it becomes more difficult to read them," he says. As if this were not enough, people like Monappa are often mistaken for looters. "I almost got beaten up when I was looking for inscriptions in Doranahalli in Shahpur taluk and Bandahalli in Yadgir taluk."

Despite all this, Monappa and others like him are undeterred. Seven of them formed the Kannada Samskruthi Samshodhana Sangha in 2014 to collaborate and exchange information. Inscriptions on stones that weigh up to 40 kg have found a place in Monappa's home. "I plan to start a museum if I get support," he says.

People who find sculptures or stones with inscriptions call us. We then rush to the spot and start field work

AS a part of the Swachh Survekshan drive, the Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) conducted a cyclothon in the city on Saturday. BBMP Administrator Gaurav Gupta, BBMP Special Commissioner, Solid Waste Management D Randeep and others took part in the event.

Gupta said the cyclothon was being held held to create awareness on Swachh Survekshan Abhiyan and to draw people's attention to participate in the survey to improve the Garden City's cleanliness ranking.

He said dedicated cycle lanes with pedestrian bays are being built by the civic body along with Directorate of Urban Land Transport (DULT) and Smart City Mission. The idea is to make the city roads more accessible for cycling and walking, he said.

Watch BRT forests come alive in this 3D docu film

BOSKY KHANNA @Bengaluru

THIS one is for those who want to see the pristine forests of Biligiri Rangaswamy Temple (BRT) Tiger Reserve, but cannot take the safari, or are just too used to the virtual life. The forests will come alive in a 3D documentary prepared by the Karnataka forest department.

The soft launch was done by Forests Minister Arvind Limbavali earlier this week, but the trials of the movie for the audience started on Saturday and the official release for all tourists will be on Monday.

The 3D movie, showcasing forests, the landscape and heritage, is the first in the state and second in India after Arunachal Pradesh, where the Eagle Nest Wildlife Sanctuary is located.

In the documentary by Ram Alluri, a Bengaluru-based naturalist, places where tourists are not allowed – like the heritage Doddasampige tree, Jodikere shola patches and Honamatti shola patches -- will be featured along with waterfalls.

The 10-minute documentary will give tourists a real-time simulated experience as they sit on a revolving chair, with a headset, DCF Dr G Santoshkumar told The New Sunday Express. He said that visitors coming to BRT for a safari can opt to watch the movie as they wait their turn.

Honnammeti is one of the picturesque locations in BRT which used to attract many visitors for the sunset. But now it has been prohibited for conservation purposes. The area is now being shown in the 3D documentary | EXPRESS

There's more: Part-2 of the series will feature animals too, and shooting is due to start in the monsoon.

Many parts of the reserve, which were earlier open to tourists for religious purposes, are now prohibited areas. Many are also not aware of the Soliga tribals who still visit forests for religious purposes. All these factoids are included in the documentary, with the sunrise in the evergreen patches and sunset on rocky terrains as the highlights.

The movie was shot by Alluri and forest guard Ayyaz in just 50 days, using drones and stand 3D cameras. The movie was shot with CSR funding and now, heads of other tiger reserves are also making their way to BRT to watch it and create similar ones on their reserves.

40 students of city college test +ve

Most are from Kerala; Govt makes it must for students coming to city to carry Covid -ve report

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

FORTY students of a nursing college in Bengaluru have tested positive for Covid-19 on Saturday. Health officials said that most of these students were from Kerala. Following this, the state government has now made it mandatory for all students coming to Bengaluru's educational institutions to carry a negative Covid-19 test certificate that is not older than 72 hours. Also, mass testing camps will be done at all nursing and medical colleges in the city.

Kerala constitutes the highest number of cases across the country with more than 5,000 cases per day. After several students from Dakshina Kannada, Mysuru and Chamarajanagar tested positive for Covid-19 a few weeks ago, the Karnataka government had announced that students coming from Kerala to Dakshina Kannada, Udupi, Mysuru, Kodagu and Chamarajanagar districts must get their RT-PCR negative test report.

Meanwhile, after visiting the college, Commissioner for Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike (BBMP) N Manjunath Prasad said that the private college, located in Pulakeshi Nagar, has a total of 210 nursing students, and 70 per cent of them are from Kerala and 30 per cent from other states.

BBMP Commissionar N Manjunatha Prasad interacts with officials of the private college in Pulakeshi Nagar on Saturday | EXPRESS

He said that Covid testing was conducted for all the students between January 25 and February 10. The test reports showed that 40 students have tested positive, while 28 are asymptomatic, and 12 have mild symptoms.

"The college has made arrangements for isolation of all the 40 students in the hostel with all basic facilities. We have also advised to isolate and quarantine all the 210 students for the next 14 days," he said.

Also, the samples of the students tested were sent to Nimhans for genome sequencing to determine if they were infected by a new variant of the novel coronavirus.

According to officials, several nursing and medical colleges have reopened in the city and several students are travelling back to Bengaluru from their native towns in different states. During the regular testing camps being held at some of these colleges, the authorities have reportedly found some of the students who have travelled to have tested positive. Considering this, the BBMP Commissioner has suggested conducting mass testing camps at all nursing and medical colleges between February 14 and 20.

Meanwhile, day-scholars from Kerala who enter various districts in Karnataka for studies will be tested once in a fortnight. The state government is encouraging educational institutions to conduct online classes for them and urged the students to avoid frequent travelling to their native places.

According to health department officials, Covid-19 cases in northern parts of Kerala were high. Last week, an order from the health department also cited a high positivity rate in RT-PCR tests done in four nursing institutes and two engineering institutes in Mangaluru since December 25, 2020. The test positivity rate was 6.8% among 2,806 cases.

Blood thinners may reduce risk of death in Covid patients

CHETANA BELAGERE @Bengaluru

A NEW study claims strong evidence that preventive blood-thinning drugs may reduce the risk of death in Covid-19 patients. About 14 per cent of patients who were given anticoagulants within 24 hours of hospital admission died from Covid-19 compared with 19 per cent of those who didn't receive it – a relative risk reduction – the study finds.

According to the study, published on Friday in the British Medical Journal, the findings on blood thinners are based on data from more than 4,000 patients, mostly men, from the US Department of Veterans Affairs. Experts in Karnataka said that a combination of three medicines worked as magic on the patients here, one of them being heparin, a blood-thinner.

"Much before the ICMR guidelines, Karnataka had already started the use of two important drugs, and later we added heparin," said Dr C N Manjunath, Director of Jayadeva Institute of Cardiovascular Sciences and Research.

He said that it was known that any person with Covid-19 would come with infection and inflammation. While the doctors treated infection by giving Remdesivir, inflammation was reduced by giving steroids.

Experts have looked for existing, low-cost medications to help severely ill Covid-19 patients as more elaborate treatments disappoint. One of the biggest successes so far has been dexamethasone, a steroid that has been shown to reduce the risk of death by one-third for patients on ventilators, and Remdesivir.

"Remdesivir is an excellent medicine if given to the right patient at the right time. Steroids were also given to patients," he added.

Interestingly, a study published in Italy last year after conducting post mortem on a Covid patient, showed that there were a lot of blood clots in the anterior lungs. Based on this study, Karnataka added the use of anticoagulation drugs in the treatment protocol.

Karnataka doctors who treated Covid-19 patients said that the three magic drugs combination made a big impact on recovery -- not only reduced ICU stay but also prevented deaths.

"Even now only after a patient's condition is analysed that the combination of these three drugs is administered as per the treatment protocol. It is clinically proven that blood thinner medicine heparin does indeed reduce mortality risks," said a senior doctor from Victoria Hospital.

REOPENING OF ANGANWADIS IN KOPPAL DISTRICT RAISES EYEBROWS

SHREEPADA AYACHIT @Koppal

WOMAN and Child Development Department's decision to reopen anganwadis, with the Education Department yet to take a call on resumption of classes from first to fifth standards owing to the pandemic, has kicked up a row, official sources said.

Koppal district has close to 1,850 anganwadis, which hundreds of children between three and six years of age attend. Though the department's circular makes it mandatory that all necessary norms, including sanitisation of the centres, Covid test for its workers and assistants and consent of parents of the children be followed, reopening of the anganwadis could pose a threat of return of the pandemic. It is almost infeasible to ensure that children comply with the requisite norms though 'only five children per session' is another norm that will be allowed, according to Anganwadi Workers' Union state vice president Kalavati Menedal. She said despite the department Minister Shashikala Jolle's recent assurance that anganwadis will not be reopened soon, its officials seem to have taken a unilateral decision in this regard.

As per an order, anganwadi centres have to function between 9.30 am and noon but no specific date has been announced for their reopening per se, sources said.

Department official Amaresh said that a few anganwadis have already commenced functioning in Kushtagi taluk.

However, deputy director of the department Akkamahadevi told TNSE that the process of sanitising anganwadis and obtaining consent letters from parents to open anganwadis in the district is underway.

SUNDAY INTERVIEW

'ENTIRE RESERVATION POLICY SHOULD BE REWRITTEN'

ASHWINI M SRIPAD @Bengaluru

JUSTICE HN Nagamohan Das, a retired High Court Judge of Karnataka, who headed the commission to look into the demand for increasing the reservation percentage for Scheduled Castes and Scheduled Tribes, says there is a need to rewrite the entire reservation policy. It should be done scientifically after holding extensive discussions, he says, while talking to The New Sunday Express.

This is the time to raise the voice for the voiceless and to reach the fruits of reservation to sectors that have not availed of its benefits

Justice H N Nagamohan Das, retired High Court Judge of Karnataka

Excerpts

Has caste reservation benefited the beneficiaries?
In Karnataka, 101 castes come under the Schedule Caste category, 53 under Schedule Tribe and 207 under Other Backward Class (OBC). Around 80 castes from all these categories are not reaping the benefits of the reservation system. This is because the strongest castes among them are getting the major share, while the poorest are left with nothing. There are many nomadic and semi-nomadic tribes that are not getting any benefits. This is the time to raise the voice for the voiceless and to reach the fruits of reservation to sectors that have not availed of its benefits.

What about the ongoing demand and protests for reservation?
Different castes are demanding fresh reservation or increase in existing reservation. Giving in to these demands will not solve the problem as more communities will then seek quota. The issue has taken a political turn and the demand too should not be met for any political gain.

Kurubas and Padmashalis are seeking higher reservation... What do you say?
More than 80 per cent of Kurubas are shepherds and farmers. Similarly, 90 per cent of Padmashalis are farmers. These people are from economically, socially and financially weaker sections. When the reservation system was implemented in the country in 1950, farmers, irrespective of caste, did not demand reservation. But over a period of time, as various policies by the government did not help them, they are demanding it now. If the government gives them facilities, they may not be rigid about reservation.

How relevant is the reservation policy?
In the recent past, reservation has become irrelevant, especially in employment. In Karnataka alone, there are 2.64 lakh sanctioned posts lying vacant in the government sector. If these posts are filled, a certain number of people from these castes will get employment which also means job security and regular income for them. Public sector undertakings are becoming privatised where reservation cannot be implemented. Similarly, in the government sector, employees are either outsourced or made to work under contract, where again reservation cannot be implemented.

Does it mean, reservation has to be implemented in the private sector?
One needs to know what is the private sector. Shares and their value govern many of these companies and shares are bought by the public. The State Government gives these companies land at concessional rates, provides tax rebates and gives water and power. All this is nothing but public money. As corporate social responsibility, companies are expected to provide reservation. If reservation in private companies has to be implemented, it has to be done at the national level. That is because if one state tries to implement it, companies will move to neighbouring states. This has to be done only after a proper study.

What about reservation in promotion?
Reservation should be given in promotion too. If there is a representation for these communities among Class A and B officers, who are policy and decision-makers, then their voice will be heard and included in the law-making exercise. Most of the people who are eligible for reservation enter the workforce at Class C and D categories and they need quota in promotion.

Seers seek OBC tag for all Veerashaiva-Lingayats

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

IN the backdrop of powerful Lingayat sect Panchamsalis (landowners) seeking 2-A reservation, a group of 180 powerful pontiffs of different Veerashaiva-Lingayat mutts from across the state have sought Other Backward Class (OBC) status to all the sub-sects of the Veerashaiva-Lingayat community.

The mutt heads, who had gathered at the Vijayanagar Sugnana Mantap in Bengaluru on Saturday, unanimously agreed that all the Veershaiva-Lingayat subsects should be given the opportunity to enjoy the benefits of OBC reservation.

The swamijis later handed over a seven-page memorandum to Veerashaiva-Lingayat Development Corporation Chairman B S Paramashivayya to take it before the State Government and urge the Centre through the state government to accord the OBC status. KRIDL Chairman M Rudresh too was present.

The prominent among the mutt heads were Siddalinga Shivacharya Swamiji of Srisaila Mutt, Jagadguru Siddalinga Shivacharya Swamiji of Ujjaini Mutt, Mallikarjuna Devaru Swamiji of Sarpabhushana Mutt, Shree Dingaleshwar Swami, Sindagi Prabhu Saranga Shivacharya Swamy, Muchalamba Sree Swamiji, Malaya Shantamuni Shivacharya of Shivaganga Mutt, Basavananda Swamiji, Yathishwara Shivacharya Swamiji of Uppoor Mutt and Mahantalinga Shivacharya Swami of Vibhuthipura.

Sree Dingaleshwara Swamiji said that it was the Union Government that has so far not accorded the OBC status to Veerashaiva-Lingayats. Unlike the two Panchamsali Swamijis who are venting their anger against the State Government and B S Yediyurappa, this gathering was speaking about the Union Government.

Will try and do justice to all: CM

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Mysuru

AMID demands from various communities in the state demanding better reservation, Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa has said that he will try to do justice to all. Yediyurappa has been under pressure from various communities — Panchamasali Lingayat, Kuruba, and Valmiki—to revise the reservation.

He said that he was confident of tackling the issue.

"These challenges are not new to me. I am happy when there are too many challenges and I work with great zeal," he said.

Speaking to reporters here on Saturday, he said that many are seeking justice for their community. "It is their right to ask. I will look into their demands and do everything possible to give them justice," he said.

On the State budget, he said he would complete pre-budget discussions and hold talks with ministers and officers.

Asked about the opposition parties making a hue and cry on poor fiscal management, Yediyurappa said they would find answers to their criticism in the budget, and clarified that works had not come to a standstill. He said there are plans to extend the runway of Mysore Airport.

I HAVE NO HAND IN QUOTA STIR: VIJAYENDRA

BJP State vice president B Y Vijayendra has refuted Congress leader Vijayanand Kashappanavar's allegation that he was behind organising the Veerashiva-Lingayat seers for the inclusion of all sects in reservation. He said that such baseless charges against the mutts would divide the communities. Stating that all communities have every right to demand reservation, he said that the CM will never split any community. "We are not against the swamijis leading the reservation stir in the interest of their own community. They should also know that Yediyurappa is the only politician who has high respect for seers and mutts," he added.

Now, Madigas to take out padayatra for reservation

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Davangere

AFTER Kuruba and Panchamasali communities, it is now the turn of Madigas to take out a padayatra demanding internal reservation for the community.

Members of the Madiga community will take out a padayatra from Harihar in Davangere district to Bengaluru pressing for their demand.

Speaking to The New Sunday Express, Seer of Adi Jambava Gurupeet Kodihalli Shadaksharamuni Swamiji said the recommendations of the Justice A J Sadashiva Commission on internal reservation were pending before the State Government since 2012.

The seer added the commission, after considering the socio-economic conditions of the Madigas, recommended internal reservation for the community.

He said the padayatra will begin in Harihar on March 25 and pass through important towns and cities before culminating in Bengaluru on April 14.

He said a mega convention of the community will be held in Bengaluru's Palace Grounds. Several religious heads of the community will take part in the padayatra, he said.

Jarkiholi: Effort on to get national project status for Bhadra, UKP

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Belagavi

MINISTER for Water Resources Ramesh Jarkiholi on Saturday said that preparations are on to declare old Bhadra project and Upper Krishna Project (UKP)-1, 2 and 3 of the State as national projects.

Speaking to reporters here, Jarkiholi, who is also Belagavi district in-charge minister, said, "The proposal is already before the Union government. I will discuss the matter with the Union Minister concerned during my visit to Delhi on February 21 and 22. If the proposal is considered, the Centre will be bearing 90 per cent of the project cost... the remaining 10 per cent of the funding will be borne by the State Government as it is an old project. While in the case of UKP, the Centre's share will be 60 per cent and the state's 40 per cent," he added.

On Goa government's fresh objection to the Mahadayi project, he said, "Goa politicians are issuing statements in the interest of local sentiments. They are blaming prime minister's interference... the dispute has already been resolved by the tribunal. Moreover, the State has been already been given its share of 13 tmcft of water from Mahadayi. We will get more share of water if the Prime Minister interferes. Since it is an inter-state issue, we need a clearance from the Central Water Commission (CWC). However, it has been delayed due to the prevailing pandemic. Work on the project is expected to begin after holding consultations with the Centre," he said.

On the demand to increase reservation for Valmiki community, Jarkiholi said, "I will adhere to the decision that Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa will take. I will also honour the decision of the religious heads of the community. We are just demanding reservation for the community in employment and education. There are no technical hurdles in this regard and the chief minister is also positive," he added.

THE IT sector hitherto confined to Bengaluru in the State is set to get a new fillip outside the capital as the Defence Ministry is expected to hand over 750 acres of land in Belagavi to the State Government to facilitate the establishment of an IT park.

Deputy Chief Minister Dr C N Ashwath Narayan, who also holds Electronics, IT/BT and S&T portfolio, met Defence Minister Rajnath Singh on Saturday and sought the 750 acres of land.

After the meeting, the DyCM said that if the land is given to the State Government, it would be used to establish an IT park and also to set up electronic hardware, aerospace, and other manufacturing industries.

Belagavi MLA Abhay Patil, who was present in the meeting told TNSE, that the process of handing over of the land is likely to start within the next 45 days.

The said land is located adjacent to the National Highway 4 near KLE Hospital.

The proposed IT Park aims to generate about 60 lakh direct and indirect jobs. It would also help the State to contribute 30% in India's target of becoming a 5 trillion-dollar economy, the DyCM said.

Except for Belagavi, nowhere in the country such a vast land is located adjacent to a National Highway, where an IT park or any other industry can be established

NO RELIEF

Minister rules out cut in petrol, diesel cess in state

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Mysuru

RULING out relief in the sky-rocketing prices of petrol and diesel by way of cut in cess like in Assam, Cooperation Minister S T Somashekhar said the financial status of the state is not healthy for such measures. He said in the past seven-eight months, there was no proper cess collection (owing to the pandemic) and the state's finances have not picked up yet.

Speaking at an interaction with reporters as a part of a budget outreach programme here on Saturday, Somashekhar said to modernise APMCs in the state under the Aatma Nirbhar scheme announced by the Centre in the budget, the state has sought ₹361 crore for 162 select APMCs.

On the fall in tax collection from APMCs, he said steps are being taken and if a situation arises and markets are not able to run the committees, the government will offer support.

Commenting on the revival of the AHINDA by Opposition leader Siddaramaiah, he said the formula does not have relevance now. "It's being revived only to cement the leadership position of those raising it which has been threatened by groupism in Congress," he said. He, however, said he has high regard for Siddaramaiah.

TWO VIDEOS AND A WEDDING

DKS faces a knotty problem, appeals to supporters

BANSY KALAPPA @Bengaluru

KARNATAKA Pradesh Congress Committee president D K Shivakumar is facing a peculiar problem. It is not ticket aspirants who are beseeching him but his supporters who want to attend his daughter's wedding on Sunday.

Two videos have gone viral, though not directly linked. One video clip shows Shivakumar appealing to his supporters to restrain themselves while the other shows party leader and former CM Siddaramaiah frowning on ostentatious weddings.

The wedding of Shivakumar's daughter Aishwarya to Amartya, son of CCD founder (late) V G Siddhartha and grandson of former CM SM Krishna (BJP), is on Sunday at a private hotel in Bengaluru. There has been such an unprecedented demand from his supporters wanting to attend the wedding that Shivkumar sent a video appeal to them. In the video, he is seen emotionally appealing to them not to be offended as he is not able to invite everybody. He urges them to bless his daughter and son-in-law from their homes.

The biggest concern during these Covid times is ensuring security, people wear masks and maintain social distance if the wedding party has to contend with gatecrashers. For the Sangeet, there were over 800 guests although only 400 were invited. Security had been a major concern for the organizers.

In contrast, the other video, which is old but has gone viral now, shows Siddaramaiah saying all his family weddings were performed in his village Siddaramanahundi in Mysuru minus all the pomp and show.

Meanwhile, those scheduled to attend the wedding are senior Congress leaders from Delhi --K C Venugopal, Digvijay Singh and opposition leader in Rajya Sabha Mallikarjun Kharge.

There is no clarity if former party president Rahul Gandhi or sister Priyanka Gandhi will attend. Sources said acting president Sonia Gandhi will not attend. Siddaramaiah has confirmed participation and will fly to Davangere soon after the wedding.

Chief Minister B S Yediyurappa and a large number of ministers from his cabinet will be also attending the wedding.

Shivakumar has limited the invites to about 800 for the wedding and about 1,400 for the reception on February 17.

Amartya has been looking after the Cafe Coffee Day business after the demise of his father Siddharta and Aishwarya has been looking after Global Academy of Technology, an engineering institution.

The forests of the Biligiri Rangaswamy Temple Tiger Reserve will come alive in a 3D documentary prepared by the Karnataka Forest Department. The soft launch was done by Forests Minister Arvind Limbavali earlier this week, but the trials of the movie for the audience started on Saturday and the official release for all will be on Monday.

Four from B'luru killed in car crash

They were going to C'magaluru to celebrate appointment of one of them as excise official

UDAY KUMAR BR & MANJU SHETTAR
@ Hassan, Bengaluru

EIGHT friends who met after two years to celebrate the new job appointment of one of them least expected that their celebration would end in a tragedy. Four of them were killed in a road accident on Saturday.

The eight men, who were classmates at University Visvesvaraya College of Engineering in Bengaluru, were heading to Chikkamagaluru in two cars, as one of their friends was to take charge as an excise inspector on Monday.

Vikram (30), Abhishek (27), Chetan (25), and Manjunath (34) were travelling in the car that rammed into a container truck on the Bengaluru-Mangaluru National Highway 75, in Channarayapatna town limits on Saturday.

According to the police, the accident occurred when the driver of the truck apparently braked suddenly ahead of speed-breakers when the speeding car that was tailing crashed into it. Chetan, who was appointed as an excise inspector, had changed vehicles with another friend at Nuggehalli Cross where they had stopped for tea. He took the wheel, and the accident occurred just 1 km ahead.

District in-charge and Excise Minister K Gopalaiah mourned the death of the men and said Chetan had met him in Bengaluru after receiving the appointment order recently.

CHETAN WAS TO JOIN ON MONDAY

Chetan S, who had just got appointed as excise inspector and whose new job was the reason for eight friends to go on a trip to Chikkamagaluru, was to report for duty on Monday, said his close friend Dayananda N P, a techie who was travelling in another car. Dayanand said, "We had decided to have a get-together as we met after six years. Chetan had gone to Kalaburagi for training. After coming back, he called us and we decided to meet. We were planning to spend two days at Chikkamagaluru. Chetan was friendly and was interested in social service."

PIL questions validity of Civil Services Act

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THE Karnataka High Court issued notice to the State Government on a public interest litigation questioning the constitutional validity of the Karnataka Civil Services (Procedure for selection of candidates during recruitment) Act, 2018. The PIL alleged that this Act was enacted to protect the fraud committed by the Karnataka Public Service Commission (KPSC) in the appointment of gazetted officials.

A division bench of Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice Sachin Shankar Magadum was hearing a petition filed by K R Khaleel Ahamed and 13 others.

The petitioners contended that the Act was enacted to nullify the order dated June 21, 2016 passed by the high court in relation to selection of candidates for 1998, 1999 and 2004 Gazetted Group 'A' and 'B' posts by KPS. They stated that the legislature cannot enact a legislation to defeat the effect of a judicial pronouncement, which was confirmed by the Supreme Court.

Not only the judgment of the high court is nullified but also the arbitrariness committed in saving the illegal appointment is glaring. Strangely, by enacting the impugned Act, the government has tried to get out of the binding effect of the decision of the high court by resorting to its legislative power, the petitioners alleged.

ENS @Bengaluru

THE CCB arrested two Nigerians on charges of drug peddling and seized a stash of cocaine and ecstasy valued at Rs 15 lakh. The duo were overstaying in the city and had plans to distribute the drugs during Valentine's Day, police said.

The suspects have been identified as John Egwuatu Chinedu (28) and Vincent Ejimofor (37), residents of B Channasandra in Ramamurthynagar.

A team from the Anti-Narcotics Wing of the CCB searched a house rented by John, seizing 60 gms of cocaine and 10 gms of ecstasy, and arrested them for storing and selling drugs.

The duo supplied drugs at parties attended by businessmen, students and techies. "The cocaine is of A-grade quality, for which they charge Rs 7,000-8,000 for one gram. The ecstasy's quality is yet to be ascertained," police said.

KARNATAKA SEES RAPID RISE IN MAN-ANIMAL CONFLICTS; EXPERTS SEEK BETTER PLANS

BOSKY KHANNA AND AMIT S UPADHYE

AN increase in conservation measures, degradation of wildlife habitats and expansion of human activities, like farming and industrialisation, has led to a spike in man-animal conflicts, emerging as a growing concern for the Karnataka Government.

For the state, which has traditionally had a high number of elephants, tigers and leopards, the issue of man-animal conflict is not new, but the rapid rise in cases in the recent past is demanding concrete plans to mitigate it.

The rate of conflict has increased manifold and the human deaths reported in the last 15 months stands testimony to it. During the period, 30 people have been killed and of them, 18 were cases involving elephants.

The reason for the spike is also close proximity of human habitats to national parks and areas with a high density of big cats and elephants. Those living on the fringes of forests in and around Bengaluru, Chamarajanagar, Mysuru and Mandya are noticing a sharp increase in such conflicts.

The cases are not just of wandering leopards and elephants, but also of wild boars straying into fields and attacking people. Other herbivores, like spotted deer, blackbucks and primates -- monkeys and langurs -- also have their share in the conflict.

While forest officials say human habitation has increased towards forested areas and buffer zones have shrunk, experts say there is less patience and tolerance among people. The coexistence that was practised for centuries is now fading, forcing the authorities to take alternative measures, like in Tumakuru where people, especially children, have been provided with reflective jackets to wear while moving out at night to ensure they are safe from leopards.

But in many cases, people themselves are at fault.

Subhash Malkhade, Additional Principal Chief Conservator of Forests (Wildlife), says, "Mobile messages are sent and even loudspeaker alerts are given on wildlife movement, especially about elephants, to ensure that no lives are lost. But still, unfortunately, between April 2020 and February 2021, 30 people have lost their lives."

Vijay Kumar Gogi, Principal Chief Conservator of Forests (wildlife), says the habitat for wildlife outside Protected Areas has shrunk in recent years. "The Forest department digs trenches to prevent animals from straying into human habitats. But at many places, local residents fill up trenches to take cattle inside the forest for grazing. The same paths are used by animals to get out of forests in the night," he says.

Col (Retd) CP Muthanna, vice-chairman, Kodagu Model Forest Trust, agreeing with Gogi on degradation and shrinking of wildlife habitats, explains how changes in wildlife have occurred because of this. "Some 20 years ago, the jackal population across Kodagu was high. They are almost extinct now. This has led to in an increase in the population of wild boars outside the forest. Tigers and leopards find comfortable prey base outside the forest that in turn leads them to the cattle," he says.

In Hassan district, there are no signs of man-animal conflicts ending. Elephants entering human habitats have become common in parts of Alur and Sakleshpur, which are Malnad taluks of the district.

According to an estimate, 71 people have been trampled to death and over 250 have sustained injuries while escaping from elephants in the last two decades in Hassan district alone.

Kishore Kumar, president, Malenadu Janapara Horata Samiti, says that the need now is to come up with a concrete plan to combat man-animal conflict. "Vital projects, including an elephant camp near Madihalli of Alur taluk and an elephant corridor in Sakleshpur, have been gathering dust at the government level. The government should conduct a survey of reserve forests and take steps to fence areas to avoid elephants entering into human habitats," he says.

Farmers in Udupi district are struggling to cope with the monkey menace. Though stray monkeys have been a problem for decades, of late there has been a big increase in their raids. Chasing away monkeys is the only remedy followed, but it is not yielding results. Villagers have been demanding action from the forest department to fight the menace.

Sathyanarayana Udupa, General Secretary, Bharatiya Kisan Sangh, cites the example of Himachal Pradesh government, which sterilised male monkeys where their population is high. Now, the number of monkeys has gradually come down. "The same method should be adopted in Udupi too," he suggests.

BIG PICTURE

Look after prey population to reduce wildlife entering human habitats

Although the context differs across time and location for different species, there are more reports of human-animal conflicts in recent times. In some cases, this reflects reality, but in other cases, it could simply be due to increased awareness, social empowerment, literacy, proliferation of social media and cell phone technology.

There is also more interest among urban people in conflicts unfolding in remote rural areas, specifically for some charismatic species like tigers and elephants. What is ignored in all this surfeit of media coverage is that many of these species that were absent from human-dominated landscapes over the last 50 or more years have been straying out of forests. With strict laws against killing of wild animals, in many parts of the country, leopards, and to a lesser degree, tigers are now breeding populations in some human-dominated landscapes. In the case of leopards, eliminating their food supply, mainly livestock, feral dogs and cats, which form bulk of their prey, is the best strategy to reduce their density and conflicts. The irony is that the so-called 'animal lovers' are aggravating the problem by increasing the numbers of feral dogs and cats. These are not only preying on wild animal species but also becoming a new prey-base that feeds leopards, increasing their densities and engendering more conflicts with humans.

Govt not shaken as people have built a fort around it: Pinarayi

GEORGE POIKAYIL
@ Uppala (Kasaragod)

THE Opposition is running a communal campaign to bring the government down but the LDF is not shaken because the people experienced the developmental and welfare work during the past four years and have built a fort around it, Chief Minister Pinarayi Vijayan has said. "We saw that in the local body elections," he added.

Pinarayi was speaking at the launch of the LDF's election campaign in northern districts at Uppala near Manjeshwar on Saturday.

"Five years ago, the people expected little from the LDF because they just wanted "to get rid of the curse" that the UDF government had become. But the LDF made a list of promises in its manifesto and every year, the government released its progress report," he said.

The LDF government implemented the GAIL pipeline, City Gas --- which will bring cheaper piped cooking gas to kitchens --- Edamon-Kochi Power Highway, K-Fon, Water National Highway, initiated the Kasaragod-Thiruvanthapuram semi high-speed rail, National Waterways, projects which people thought could ot be implemented in Kerala.

"During crises such as Ockhi, Nipah, the great floods and Covid-19, the government stood with the people and the people put up a united fight," he said.

A rattled UDF is now running a campaign saying the LDF is as rotten as it was five years ago, he said. "The central agencies have come forward with the responsibility of sabotage. A section of media has also joined the force," he said.

The LDF's campaign -- Vikasana Munnetta Yatra or the March of Development -- is being led by the front's convenor A Vijayaraghavan. The campaign will touch seven districts and culminate in Thrissur on February 26.

In a departure from the previous statewide yatras, the chief minister did not hand over the LDF's flag to the campaign captain Vijayaraghavan because of Covid restrictions.

'Communalism a danger to state'

Communalism is a danger to the state, the chief minister said. In the name of opposing the RSS, organisations such as the SDPI and the Jamaat-e-Islami are following the same path of communalism, he said. "All the three strengthen communalism and all the three are against the LDF," he added.

THUNBERG'S tweets in support of farmers protests near Delhi against farm laws were among many posts that had drawn global attention to the farmers' agitation, which had begun in November last year. The Cyber Cell of the Delhi Police is investigating several tweets, but the subject of the FIR refers to Greta Thunberg's tweet on a "toolkit" guiding people on how to support the farmers' protests.

Special Commissioner (Crime Branch), Delhi Police, Praveer Ranjan had stated that a preliminary inquiry indicated that the toolkit in question was created by the Poetic Justice Foundation, which has been termed as a "pro-Khalistani organisation".

"The 'toolkit' exposes the conspiracy by an organised overseas network to instigate the farmer protests," the officer had added.

TS diamond may fetch at least $150K in auction

AIHIK SUR @ Hyderabad

A rare diamond, which traces its roots to the famed Golconda mines and hails from an estate in New York, is set to go under the hammer next month in the USA. The 3.05-carat flawless, pear-shaped diamond is estimated to fetch around ₹1.5 crore but the price is likely to go up.

The Fortuna Auction House in New York, where the diamond is set to be auctioned in March, describes it as: "Golconda diamonds which are known for their exceptional colour and clarity." "The auction will be led by a dazzling diamond ring which is sure to attract an influx of fervent bidder activity. An exceptionally rare Type IIa D/Internally Flawless 3.05-carat diamond ring.. will be offered for an estimated $150,000-$200,000," Fortuna said in its auction catalogue.

Golconda Diamonds, which are Type IIa diamonds, are a special attraction because they do not show any presence of nitrogen atoms, i.e., impurities that give most diamonds a yellow tinge. "Such diamonds are exceedingly rare and hardly ever make it to the market. In fact, Fortuna has sold only three Type IIa diamonds," it added.

In his memoirs, Jean-Baptiste Tavernier, a 17th century French gem merchant, underlines that there were around 23 mines in the kingdom of Golconda, with Kolur being the first to have been discovered. Trade in diamonds flourished and it is recorded that the Dutch and the English often purchased the gems to export them to England, Holland, Jakarta and so on.

"These diamonds are a testament to the Deccan's richness. The trade output from all the mines in Golconda used to be around 10 million carats. It speaks of the quality," a heritage activist said.

NEW WORLD ORDER: FORGET G20, FORM G2TRILLION

THE much awaited signal event, the first conversation between US President Joe Biden and Chinese President Xi Jinping, came to be this Thursday. The readout of the two hour Biden-Xi dialogue, where Biden raised hackle points of Taiwan, Xinjiang and Hong Kong is as yet open to interpretation and all bets are off.

The beauty about the Cold War was that the principal players kept the heat on simmer, under control beyond the thrusts and parries of rhetoric. The emerging face-off between the United States and China has all the portents of a tense future. Verily, the tussle for supremacy has geopolitical consequences and will inform and influence the new world order.

The US and China account for over a third of the $85 trillion global GDP and nearly a trillion dollars in military spending. It is early days as yet. Regardless of whether the US-China stand-off acquires a competitive or confrontational countenance, the two countries will define supremacy competing in technology, military power and trade besides other areas in the coming years. Common sense says when mammoths battle, the brunt of collateral damage will befall those caught betwixt.

Interestingly, or serendipitously if you please, a day before the Biden-Xi talks, PM Narendra Modi invoked the spectre of transition into a new world order in Parliament while articulating the need to accelerate the pace of change to ensure India its place in the emerging world order. It is true that domestic resilience matters. It is equally true that sustaining this resilience demands leverage in an interconnected world. The challenge and opportunity for India is to build a coalition of similarly placed economies and like-minded democracies. In January, India was accorded the status of 'special invitee' to G7 in recognition of its growing stature. The acknowledgement and recognition of its potential affords India the stature to lead the initiative to create a bloc which represents the cause of strategic autonomy.

There are 13 countries including India, functioning democracies all, accounting for $ 27-trillion plus in GDP, six of them $2 trillion plus economies and seven aspiring to get there, who could be constituents of this block. These include Japan, Germany, the UK, France, Brazil, Italy, Canada, South Korea, Australia, Spain, Mexico and Indonesia. There is economic clout and common concern which could be the binding glue. The emerging proposition of the alternate order resting on the troubling totalitarian axis of China and the fluid ambiguity of Russia when juxtaposed with the descent into dysfunctional isolationism of the US presents a spectre which is worrisome. That said the emerging chaos presents silhouettes of possibilities — to be engaged in meeting challenges and to stay interconnected in emerging opportunities.

Each of the 13 countries is both a consuming and a producing economy, visible in agri and industrial produce markets, rich in human and natural resources, moving rapidly towards algorithmic automation and is entrenched in the supply chain. The pandemic brought home harsh lessons in resilience — over a fourth of the $ 4 trillion-plus global trade could shift supply base by 2025 within this grouping. There are opportunities galore for competition and collaboration.

Challenges to economic and national security brought together an undeclared coalition dubbed Five Eyes on the Huawei question to pave the way for induction of 5G. The ossification of the UN Security Council created the G4 — Brazil, India, Germany and Japan — to push for representation reforms. A similar approach will be needed to confront vexing questions — from data management to offshoring of legit tax revenues.

The history of the phraseology of 'the new world order', in its current contextual construct, grounded in the rule of law, can be traced to Tsar Alexander I who in 1814 conceptualised the idea of an international system. A century later, in 1919, Woodrow Wilson deployed the catch-all composition 'new world order' in the run up to the formation of the League of Nations.

In 2021, it is manifest that the post war 'Wilsonian world order' is unravelling — particularly following the collapse of the Soviet Union. There is some basis for the perception that the institutional architecture has been bent to serve ill-conceived notions and illegitimate mandate of hegemons. The UN, it has been argued for long, is a hostage of the fossilised Security Council. The G7 bloc of industrialised nations accounting for over half the global wealth, set up in 1975 following the 1973 oil crisis is around but comes alive only during financial crises. And the G20 set up in 1999 has been memorably described as 'G-Zero' by the cognoscenti. It is apparent that the structures meant to enable the rule of law are stultified and have been reduced to instruments of expediency rather than the intended platforms for ensuring equity and efficiency. In 1939, H G Wells in his tome, The New World Order, said "The new order will be incessant; things will never stop happening."

The world has since become far more complex. The belief that freedom of will and free market is the road to peace and prosperity is challenged relentlessly. The G2Trillion group can scarcely afford the consequences and must come together. As the largest free market democracy, India has much at stake and will have to pave the path.

MODI CRIES. INDIA TOO CAN ONLY CRY

POINT OF VIEW

TJS GEORGE

OUR Prime Minister cried in Parliament the other day. No, his face didn't go into contortions of grief and the body did not shake with sobbing. His was a dignified crying that could be managed with a quick flashing of the thumb under the eyeglass and a sip of water. The sight of a democratically elected leader succumbing to emotions of the ordinary kind must have attracted widespread sympathy from those who watched the scene on TV.

What made him cry? People must have thought that he was grieving over the death of more than 200 farmers who died in the course of their Long March protest. Or, they thought he was upset that responsible citizens like Sudha Bharadwaj and Stan Swamy were still in prison for no offence other than expressing opinions different from the Government's.

But we learned in due course that our Prime Minister turned teary-eyed not for reasons lay citizens thought possible. He cried because Ghulam Nabi Azad was retiring from Parliament. This made no sense. Retiring from Parliament is a routine. And Azad is not even a BJP man. Why should the country's most important BJP leader cry when a Congressman leaves the Rajya Sabha? Obviously, it is theatrics. But who is it meant to fool?

Azad must have been pleased, of course. He made the kind of statement politicians do. "We understand some people superficially and some in depth," he said. "Those who understand me in depth and saw my work over the years became emotional yesterday. I am thankful to everyone." So, Modiji understood Azadji in depth and all is well with the world. Shashi Tharoor had the best comment on Modi's emotional farewell. "Artfully crafted performance," he said. He recalled farmers' leader Rakesh Tikait breaking down recently and said: "It was partly in response to Tikait's tears that the PM decided he also has tears."

Political leaders crying in the open always attract headlines. That, too, must have weighed with Modi, a master in the art of public relations. He would have known how tears have influenced history. Winston Churchill famously cried in Parliament, not once but many times until Edward VIII called him a

"cry baby". Jawaharlal Nehru turned teary-eyed while listening to Lata Mangeshkar's rendering of 'Aye mere Watan Ke Logon' on Republic Day in 1963. Donald Trump represented the other side of the spectrum; he said crying by men was a sign of weakness. Remember he made his millions in real estate business, a cut-throat field.

Modi is known for his love of theatrics. Punjab CM Amarinder Singh called him "a self-obsessed man interested only in publicity; all his actions are aimed at that." But even his bitterest critic must agree that he is a master of the art of publicity. He knows how to seize the moment and leave his imprint on it.

The absence of an effective opposition in India is no doubt the main reason for the BJP's success. The Congress is in no position to challenge the BJP because the Congress has become a mere extension of Rahul Gandhi, who turns into a national leader only when he is in the right mood. Where is BJP with its cadre base and where is Congress with its time servers? Rahul Gandhi is either unable or unwilling to see the negative impact of his on-again off-again kind of leadership. He doesn't lose, but his party does.

The call for internal elections has been strong in the Congress lately. Officially, they have also fixed a time frame for such an election. But no one seems to have been impressed. If Rahul Gandhi is a candidate for the president's post, will there be another candidate? How credible will be the election even if a 'naam-ke-wastay' candidate is put up against him? The reality is that inner-party democracy is not only non-existent in the Congress; it is not possible because of the Gandhi family's overwhelming status in the party.

The political scenario in India is not going to change in the foreseeable future. It will be a two-party system, with one party strong in its internal structure as well as leadership, and the other party losing its identity into the identity of a single family. The BJP is lucky. The Congress is unlucky. India? Well, India is unlucky. It can only cry.

DECODING THE JEEVI SYNDROME

POWER & POLITICS

PRIME Minister Narendra Modi is experiencing a thesaurus moment. Known for crafting acerbic adjectives and giving old slogans a new spin, he is the ultimate bhashajeevi of India. Tukde-Tukde gang, Khan Market Gang and Bharat ka Chowkidar are now catchwords in the national lexicon: 'Aatmanirbharta' was chosen the Oxford Dictionary's Hindi word of 2020.

Last week, Modi gave a new label to a genus of protestors —andolanjeevi; a derisive term for professional agitators seeking relevance by popping up at each and every anti-establishment agitation, irrespective of geography. Neatly sparing the agitating farmers, Modi branded their invisible and visible supporters andolanjeevis. Unimaginative BJP leaders had resorted to the usual trope of 'Khalistanis', 'anti-nationals' and 'urban Naxals' to a cliche weary audience. Perhaps, Modi's differentiation came through the awareness that he himself has participated in numerous andolans (agitations). His coinage was to draw the line between professional disruptionists and provocateurs, and ideologically-led contrarians.

This assertion was based on the omnipresent sloganeers present at protests against NRC, CAA and action against the extreme Left liberals. Illiberals mocked Modi for dissing democratic dissent. They pointed out that Mahatma Gandhi himself was an andolanjeevi. The provocative disruptionist in the PM has identified different titles for different classes. Prominent among them are:

Budhijeevi: Stands for the intellectuals. Their livelihood is their thinking skills. They claim to be repositories of wisdom. They are the most sought after species by ignorant crowd pleasers and individuals with complexes. They lament the tyranny against free thought to confuse others.

Woody Allen sees them as a mafia that murders its own. But intellectuals as a class are immortal because of their ability to explain a simple issue in a collectively complex way. There is hardly an institution or political party that doesn't invite buddhijeevis to enrich analytical skills of their members and executives. Every party has a cell comprising buddhijeevis simply because they have read a few books more than the others. Emperor Akbar had the Navratnas to advise him. Since then, this cerebral institution has cozied up to every darbar from kings to government heads, and, in fact, have even become chiranjeevis. A ruler without a buddhijeevi circle is considered a leader without perfect vision. The buddhijeevi has become an evil genius by curating the mindset of decision-makers.

Shramjeevi: The term is applicable only to genuine individuals who live off hard labour. He or she gets money for sweat and toil, and not out of the sake of pity. Though everyone claims to be working hard for their institution or party, they are getting rewarded for loyalty and submission. Billions of labourers who work in fields, factories and construction are the bonafide shramjeevis, who, regretfully, are rarely lauded or adored except as vote banks. They are destined to create additional wealth for the wealthy. Marx's call for the workers of the world to unite was meant to obtain the maximum share of national income for the shramjeevi. With markets decimating this Markist maxim, shramjeevis have been reduced to meagre wage earners who are exploited by those who hire them.

Sattajeevi: An apt definition of people who live off power acquired by means fair or foul. Most elected leaders, ministers and bureaucrats abuse power for their own benefit instead of using it to serve the people. The lust for power is so insatiable that sattajeevis create handsomely remunerative pre- and post-retirement opportunities for themselves in the name of serving the people. Ironically, they become totally indispensable due to the fact that those who appoint them are also sattajeevis.

You may ask, what's in a name? Identity is the answer. But what's in a nickname? Fake entities to exploit the gullibility of powerful patrons with a yearning for the glamour of grey matter

Manoranjanjeevi: Name for entertainers of all kinds from cinema to stand up comics, from dance and song judges to comedians. They market their mastery of keeping fans happy and laughing. They are rarely subjects of ridicule since they are unaccredited professionals who are hired by political parties of all hues and corporate of all sizes. Of late, it has become fashionable to arrest some of them for hurting the sentiments of various types of people, politicians and pets.

Awsarjeevi: They exploit every opportunity that comes their way. They are the genuine fence sitters and are the first to pole vault over to the winning side. Awsarjeevis are like potatoes; they can be added to every dish from mutton to veggies. They are the single largest group of beings, which doesn't mind humiliation and ignobility, being the fastest ladder climbers who dump the ladder upon reaching the top. Conviction is a matter of convenience for them, being available to the highest bidder. They can speak in many tongues simultaneously. This category's breeding ground is politics, bureaucracy and media.

Mudrajeevi: The adage 'money makes the mare go' fits this species to a T. A prominent industrialist used to boast that he could buy anyone with money. A study on the people who facilitated his empire to grow at Mach 10 speed would prove that most of the decision makers are mudrajeevis. 'Paisa phenko aur tamasha dekho (Throw money and enjoy the show)' is the time-tested method of allurement. Mudrajeevis have no qualification or defined personality. They are available at a price to infiltrate any fortress or activity which nobody else can.

Jyotisjeevi: India is the perhaps the only country with the largest number of astrologers and sadhus making a living by predicting a prosperous future for patrons. Their clientele varies from the rich and the famous to the poor and the ailing. A majority of them live in penury while some greedy godmen occupy palatial ashrams where the powerful comes seeking counsel and blessings, bearing expensive gifts to convert their glum present into a happy future. There is hardly a city or a road where one cannot find an astrologer enticing passersby with sales pitch using even parrots and snakes.

Seminarjeevi: They are a class apart; slightly less sophisticated intellectual minis. They survive through networking and organising seminars for their target audiences who have the money and platforms. Seminarjeevis operate through think tanks, pretending to provide the solutions and templates for resolving political, strategic, defence, diplomatic and even geographical conflicts. They are essentially freeloaders seeking domestic and international business class tickets to salubrious destinations for peddling their untested prescriptions. These globetrotters are liberally funded through mysterious mechanisms in the form of teaching assignments, research projects and consensus-building processes. In this unipolar world and age of market domination, their number has exponentially grown because they lend their names to any predefined policy framework available to them.

You may ask, what's in a name? Identity is the answer. But what's in a nickname? Fake entities to exploit the gullibility of powerful patrons with a yearning for the glamour of grey matter. What India needs isn't jeevis who live for money, fame and name. To be truly atmanirbhar, it needs only Bharatjeevis.

Never trust the Chinese

"Trust, but verify" is the diplomatic password very much applicable to the LAC disengagement now underway in Pangong Tso, Ladakh, especially since China is notorious for its wily and unscrupulous charater. India, in the 'once bitten, twice shy' mode, will hopefully be doubly cautious that the agreement is fully complied with. Since the disengagement is a work in progress, it is too early for the Opposition parties to pick holes in the Centre's optimistic explanation. As they say, 'Well begun is half done' and certainly not fully done.

Why debates only in Hindi

The Parliament debates in recent times have been mostly in Hindi only presumably following the one nation, one language' policy of the present day government. What is worrying is that even non-Hindi speakers try to speak in Hindi only presumably on instructions from the top party brass. Unless equal importance is given to English and other national languages listed in the Schedule and if the non-Hindi speakers do not speak in their mother tongues or English, Hindi in only going to dominate and that may not surely help to develop these languages equally well. And if the government wants to develop all the languages as it professes, it must stop giving prominence to Hindi only but give equal importance to other languages as well to maintain equal and proper respect for all the languages, starting from the country's highest seat of democracy.

Just another poll tactic

The CPI decision to keep off three-timers from the coming Kerala Assembly elections, due in two-three months, can only be considered one among different tactics, being adopted by various parties to appear in the good books of the voters. The party's own explanation, that 'vote is for the party and not the individual', does not look to justify its decision but seems a ploy enough to mislead the voters. In the present day Indian politics, something prompts me to suggest that MLAs and MPs should contest elections as long as they can manage health-wise. New incumbents make no differences to the people. At least, life-time MLAs and-MPs can save a huge amount in the public exchequer, by limiting the salary and pension to MLAs/MPs and ex-MLAs/MPs, considered together, to a possible minimum.

Getting farm priorities right

This is with reference to 'Organic farming varsity likely to come up in Shivamoggga' (Feb 12). Using chemical fertilisers and pesticides is not something abnormal but the fact that it ruins soil and is unhealthy isn't a recent discovery. The fact that organic farming is beneficial and healthy is also an already established fact, and so this must have been already in place. Agriculture Minister BC Patil saying that the people are leaning towards organic produce, which is in demand, and so we need to give priority to organic farming makes me wonder what exactly is happening. Is the state just trying to supply according to the demand? Should the intention not have been to produce healthy crops in the first place?

Congress needs to reinvent

This refers to the news "Kharge set for LOP in Rajya Sabha as Azad's replacement". It is a pity that such an old national party like Congress had to depend upon the spent forces like Kharge and company to fight its case in the Rajya Sabha. Can't the Congress find some relatively young and energetic faces in their fold to lead the party? Neither the party have any charismatic leaders in the family nor the family wants to hand over the leadership to anybody other than the family. What a pathetic situation being faced by the grand old party of our nation. If BJP is going to stay here for some time more, the sole responsibility lies with Congress themselves only.

Farmer leaders demand judicial probe into Republic Day incidents

Claiming that 16 persons are still missing, Morcha accuses Delhi cops of framing false cases

HARPREET BAJWA @Chandigarh

FARMER unions have demanded a high-level judicial inquiry into the violence that took place in Delhi on Republic Day. They said 16 persons are still missing and alleged that Delhi Police is trying to implicate farmers in false cases.

"Initially, 122 farmers were booked, most of them on charges of attempt to murder and dacoity. The purpose of booking them on these charges is to sabotage the agitation and make sure that farmers are behind bars for long... The police are trying to spread terror," said Samyukta Kisan Morcha's legal cell head Prem Singh Bhangu.

Bhangu and advocate Kuldeep Singh demanded a juridical probe by a retired Supreme Court or high court judge. "The innocent are being framed in false cases," they alleged. The farmer leaders said they visited Tihar Jail on Friday to speak to those arrested. They informed that the Morcha has arranged ₹2000 per heed for canteen expenses for the persons held there.

They said it was the responsibility of Delhi Police to trace the 16 missing. "These people went missing from the national capital. We have sent a written representation, but the police are keeping mum. Of the 16, nine are from Haryana, one from Rajasthan and rest from Punjab. Of the 122 in custody, 10 have been granted bail," said Bhangu.

Accusing the police of harassing the farmers, the unions have promised to stand by them. Rajinder Singh, member of the Morcha's legal team, said that farmers can approach their legal cell for assistance. He said that 122 farmers had been arrested by Delhi Police in connection with 14 of the 44 FIRs.

"We are still to get copies of 22 FIRs. Two farmers went to police after getting notices and were arrested. We will provide legal and financial aid to the arrested farmers," said Singh.

Modi claims he is creating options through these laws. But the options he is creating for farmers are only of hunger, unemployment and suicide — Rahul Gandhi

'Hunger, suicide only options'

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Jaipur

CONGRESS leader Rahul Gandhi held a tractor rally and mounted a camel cart in Ajmer district on the second day of his Rajasthan trip to support the farmers protesting the agri laws. Addressing thousands of farmers in Rupangarh, Gandhi remained unsparing in his attack on PM Narendra Modi.

"Modi claims he is creating options through these laws. But the three options he is creating for farmers are only of hunger, unemployment and suicide... Your government only wants to give all rights to 'Hum Do, Hamare Do," he said. At a Kisan Mahapanchayat in Makrana in Nagaur district, Gandhi claimed the farmers have shown "light in the darkness" through their protests.

Obstacles force changes in strategy at Tapovan tunnel

VINEET UPADHYAY
@Tapovan (Uttarakhand)

AFTER toiling in vain for nearly six days, rescue teams have changed strategy. They were trying to drill a hole on the floor of Tapovan tunnel which was intended to be 12 metres deep and 75mm in diameter.

Officials of NTPC decided on Saturday to widen the diameter of the hole to about one foot. This was estimated to take eight more hours. Around 37 persons are feared trapped in the tunnel network.

"The NTPC has decided to increase the diameter of the hole to reach the silt flushing tunnel where the men are suspected to be trapped," said Ravinath Raman, commissioner of Garhwal division. The decision came after the rescue team could not see anything in the silt flushing tunnel through a camera device due to the thick cover of sludge.

Till Saturday, 38 bodies had been found, with 166 still missing. "Eleven bodies have been identified. We also recovered 18 body parts, of which 10 have been cremated after taking DNA samples for further identification," said Nilesh Anand Bharney, in-charge of the State Police Disaster Control Room.

The process of clearing the tunnel is not going too fast either, due to difficult conditions. Rescue teams have been able to clear 136 metres of the 180-metre tunnel, said officials. The NTPC officials were also quoted as saying that more than 100 scientists are at work.

Not all are happy with the efforts. "Ye NTPC wale bas goli de rahe hain (they are just dodging the ball it seems)," said an official of Chamoli district, who was present at Saturday's meeting called by the Commissioner of Garhwal division to review the progress.

Meanwhile, state government officials told this newspaper that the lake, which has formed 8 km upstream from Raini village, has a sufficient gap through which water is draining out in a stable manner.

Till Saturday, 11 bodies have been identified. We also found 18 body parts, of which 10 have been cremated after taking DNA samples for further identification

Sunday off saved lives of labourers from Jharkhand

MUKESH RANJAN @Ranchi

"NOT working on Sundays saved our lives. Otherwise, all of us would have died," says Jainath Singh. He is one of the 10 daily-wage labourers from Jharkhand's Latehar district who survived the Uttarakhand flood tragedy.

All 10 working on the NTPC project site returned home on Friday. They were dropped at Haridwar by a bus arranged by the contractor they were working for. The rest of the journey was on train without a ticket. At least 14 more from Jharkhand working in Chamoli are still missing.

"We were playing cards outside our rooms. Suddenly, we heard people screaming. We gathered at a place and saw a 40-metre wall of water approaching and taking everything along with it. We started climbing uphill, leaving everything behind," Jainath recalls. "Because it was a Sunday, we were relaxing at the makeshift camp set up for labourers." In Jharkhand, people do not work on Sundays.

Not all around them were that fortunate. "About 4-5 workers from Bihar were sleeping inside and didn't take it seriously when they were told to run. They got washed away in the flood," says Jainath.

It was only a few days that Jainath & Co worked at the ill-fated site. They had reached Chamoli around two weeks ago and were in quarantine before reporting for work. "We worked for just 4-5 days before disaster struck," says Jainath.

INTERVIEW

Centre's willingness to amend farm laws means they are flawed: Amarinder

ATTEMPTS were made to give the farmers and their agitation a bad name but the Republic day violence has only strengthened it, Punjab Chief Minister Amarinder Singh told Harpreet Bajwa. He said anti-social elements seem to have been sponsored and instigated the violence.

How has the Republic Day violence affected the farm movement?
As you can see, the Republic day violence has only strengthened the movement. That's what happens when you decide to destabilise a movement by breaking it. Attempts were made to give the farmers and their agitation a bad name by what seems to have been a sponsored violence, instigated by anti-social elements. All the major kisan unions had distanced themselves from the violence on the day it happened. And the reason is obvious, why should farmers who had been agitating peacefully, first in Punjab for months and then for two months at the Delhi borders, suddenly resort to violence? They knew they would achieve nothing with violence. In fact they were aware that they would lose popular support once they gave up their peaceful agitation.

Further, the tightening of controls and the non-humanitarian acts of the central government against farmers in the wake of the Republic day violence has also backfired. The farmers have been pushed to the corner by such acts, which have brought a bad name to the entire country with even the UN taking notice of the developments at Delhi's borders, where Internet has been suspended, nails and barricades have come up as never seen before, and farmers have been deprived even of basic amenities like toilets, electricity and water.

With farmers refusing to come down from their maximalist demand of repeal of the laws, what is the way forward?
Firstly, let's not look at their demand as maximalist. Demands are either justified or not justified. And frankly, the demands of the farmers are totally justified in my opinion. The farm laws were introduced and enacted in a very unconstitutional manner, going completely against the spirit of federalism and democracy. So why should they not be repealed?

Even the union government has admitted that these laws had lacuna, which they say they are ready to address. They have even said they are prepared to put them in abeyance for a year-and-a-half, so why not just withdraw them and start afresh? As for the way forward, dialogue is the only way to resolve any issue in a democracy so the two sides should continue talking. And I am happy to note that both sides have indicated their willingness to continue talking on all issues of conflict.

Will you intervene if the Centre asks you?
I have said it earlier also that the farmers do not want any political mediation. They have been talking to the union government directly and have kept their agitation totally apolitical. If they don't want any intervention from our side, we cannot do anything about it.

Will the farm protests be the election decider in the 2022 Punjab assembly polls?
The polls are still a year away and I hope the issue will be resolve long before that. I really hope the problem does not drag on and both sides sit across the table once again to find an early resolution.

Do you think farmers should accept the government's proposal to halt laws for 18 months?
The farmers know what they want and why. They understand the dangers and implications of the farm laws better than anyone else so the decision has to be left to them. If the farmers feel they will not accept anything less than a repeal, then frankly I don't see why the central government should stand on its prestige. If they are ready to halt the laws for 18 months then why not just revoke them and bring fresh laws after due discussion with all stakeholders?

How do you view Punjab governor's role in sitting over the state bills since October 2020?
It's very unfortunate. The governor should have simply forwarded the Bills to the President for assent immediately after all parties of Punjab submitted the same to him, the very day when the Vidhan Sabha passed the Bills. It is against the spirit of the constitution and beneath his high office to sit over the Bills.

The Bills were passed under Article 254 (ii) of the constitution and are hence totally valid. During the UPA regime, several BJP-ruled states had passed amendments to centrally-enacted laws on land acquisition and the same were approved by then President Pranab Mukherjee in 2014. No Governor sat over those amendments. My government has now decided to bring the Bills again in the Assembly and we will send them again to the governor, who is then constitutionally bound to forward them to the President.

Moitra fumes at posting of BSF outside residence

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @New Delhi

TRINAMOOL Congress MP Mahua Moitra on Saturday wrote to the Delhi Police after three armed security personnel were deputed outside her official residence in New Delhi, wondering whether she was under "some sort of surveillance".

In the letter to Delhi Police Commissioner S N Shrivastava, she said the station house officer of Barakhamba Road police station had come to meet her at her residence on February 12 and shortly "thereafter, around three BSF personnel armed with assault rifles had been deputed outside her house".

"The conduct of these armed officers indicate that they are making notes of movements to and from my residence, it appears to me that I am under some sort of surveillance. "I wish to remind you that Right to Privacy is a Fundamental Right guaranteed to me, as a citizen of this country, under the Constitution of India, 1950" she stated.

The TMC MP added: "Upon making inquiries, I was informed that the armed officers had been deputed from Police Station Barakhamba Road for my protection. However, I being an ordinary citizen of this country, did neither ask nor want any such protection. Therefore, you are requested to withdraw these officers," she said in her letter.

Sharing pictures of the security personnel deputed outside her residence on Twitter, Moitra wrote: "Our brave young men sign up for the BSF to guard India's borders - using them for durwan duty outside my home is a bit silly, isn't it, @CPDelhi, @MHAIndia."

Second round of Covid-19 vax drive begins

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @New Delhi

AS the Covid-19 vaccination numbers crossed the 8 million-mark, administration of the second dose of the vaccine to those who took the first shot on day 1 of the nationwide inoculation drive on January 16 also began in several states.

Several healthcare workers, who had taken the first, lined up to receive the second shot — 28 days later — to complete the inoculation regimen, said an official.

Officials, however, maintained that while the second jab of vaccine (either Covishield or Covaxin taken as the first dose) is recommended 28 days later, it can be taken anytime between four to six weeks from the first dose.

Of about 8 million healthcare and frontline workers who have received the first shot till Friday, the Union Health Ministry said, 97 per cent are "satisfied".

The number of people who have taken the shot so far reached 80,52,454 on Saturday, and 7,668 HCWs received the second dose on its first day.

India has set a target of inoculating 30 crore people against Covid-19 by July which include those identified most at the risk of catching an infection or developing severe disease. In a statement on Saturday, the government said eight states account for about 60 per cent of the total beneficiaries vaccinated in India.

8 lakh IDs in 6 months: Health mission finds few takers

SUMI SUKANYA DUTTA @New Delhi

THERE seems to be a less than enthusiastic response to the Centre's plan to create national health identities under the National Digital Health Mission with only 8 lakh IDs being created in the nearly six months of its launch on a pilot basis.

In the six UTs where the initiative was started, 8,05,674 health IDs had been created till last week, said a reply by the Health Ministry to a question in the Lok Sabha. This means that on an average only 4,475 people have come forward to get themselves registered to digitally record their health details every day. The reply shows that the highest number of IDs was created in Puducherry and about half the fund of ₹1 crore, allocated for the initiative in the current financial year, had been spent so far. The mission was announced by PM Narendra Modi on August 15.

Among other things, the plan is aimed at providing easy access to electronic health records to citizens, generating longitudinal health record data and also ensuring privacy of personal health data along with consent-based access to electronic health records. According to officials, IDs can be created by providing basic information like name, year of birth, gender, and either a mobile number or an Aadhaar number.

As per the NDHM policy document, the objective of the mission is "to create a system of digital personal and medical health records which is easily accessible to individuals and health service providers and is voluntary in nature, based on the consent of individuals."

Who goes to court? Judiciary ramshackled, you will not get a verdict: Gogoi

NEW DELHI: Expressing concern over the increasing pendency of cases that is clogging the Indian judicial system, former Chief Justice of India Ranjan Gogoi termed the situation as "ramshackled" and added that even he would not go to the courts.

"Who goes to the court? You go to the court and regret," Gogoi said, adding that it is those who can afford to take chances, such as the big corporates, who approach the courts.

Gogoi, who was nominated to the Rajya Sabha in March 2020 after his retirement as the CJI in November 2019, was speaking at an event at Kolkata. "If you go to the court, you would be washing dirty linen in the court. You will not get a verdict," the former CJI said in reply to a question if he would take legal action against TMC MP Mahua Moitra over her statement in the Lok Sabha that Gogoi discredited the judiciary by deciding the sexual harassment allegations against himself.

Without naming Moitra, Gogoi said the "lady politician" did not have her facts right as he did not decide the case against him. Gogoi said he had handed over the file to Justice S A Bobde, who was the next senior judge then, who in turn constituted an inquiry panel as per the in-house procedure.

Gogoi stressed the need for a roadmap to overhaul the judicial system. "You want a 5 trillion dollar economy but you have a ramshackled judiciary," he commented.

"You don't appoint judges as you appoint officers in the government. To be a judge is a full time commitment. ," he said, stressing that the training of judges should be robust. ENS

The campaign vehicle is aimed at blunting the impact of BJP's rath yatras | EXPRESS

'Didi's messenger' hits road to counter saffron blitzkrieg

PRANAB MONDAL @ Kolkata

AFTER more than one lakh persons downloaded and accessed Trinamool Congress's app called Didir Doot (Didi's messenger) in the last one week, the ruling party flagged off a vehicle under the same banner on Saturday.

It is said to be CM Mamata Banerjee's initiative to blunt the impact of BJP's 'rath yatra' held recently under the banner of Parivartan Yatra across the state. The vehicle will travel to all districts in the state and district-level functionaries will play the role of Didi's messengers.

"Didir Doot application, which was launched on February 4, has been installed by more than a lakh users in just eight days. It's a first-of-its-kind mobile application designed for the people of West Bengal to directly connect them to Didi (Mamata Banerjee) and contribute in achieving her mission and vision for the state," TMC said in a statement.

A ruling party leader said users can directly connect with the CM via streaming and video conferencing. "People can stay updated with the CM's initiatives and recent events. Users can be updated with latest developments through news feeds, photos, videos and infographics," he said.

> BJP's rath yatra is a drive to mislead the people of Bengal. This app was launched to counter saffron propaganda. Our district-level functionaries will travel in their areas and reach out to the masses
>
> A TMC leader

This is not only meant to be an outreach drive but also an initiative to showcase the development work carried out by the regime of Mamata. Slugfest in the cyber world is becoming intense everyday ahead of the upcoming elections. Union Home minister Amit Shah, during his visit to the state on February 11, instructed party workers to circulate at least 50 lakh content per hour on the party's social media platforms.

Twin challenges for BJP in Assam elections

Tie-up of opposition parties Congress and AIUDF and formation of regional outfits likely to dent its vote share

PRASANTA MAZUMDAR @ Guwahati

THE BJP, which heads Assam's three-party ruling coalition, is faced with an uphill task to achieve its goal of winning 100 out of the state's 126 seats in the upcoming Assembly polls.

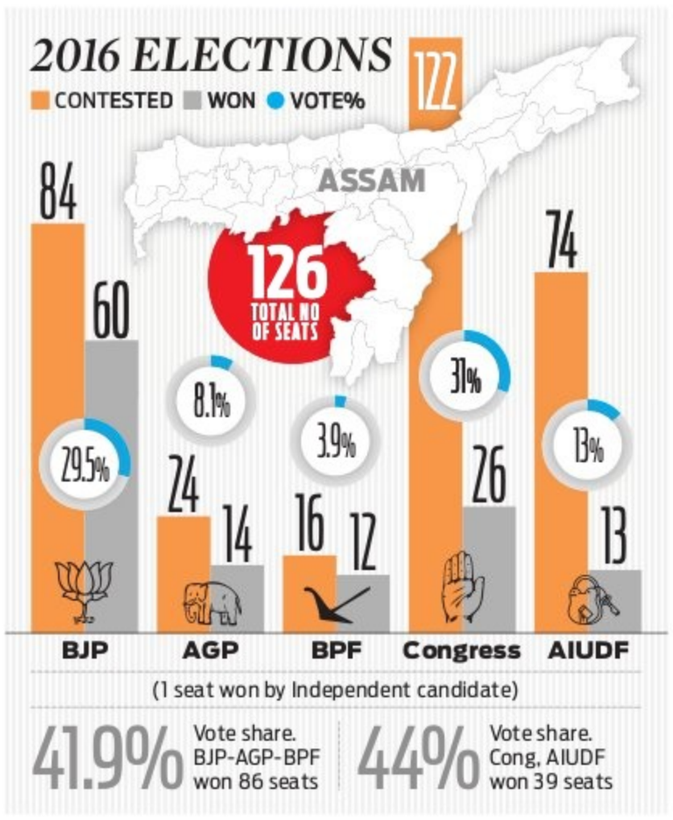
Cashing in on the Modi wave, the saffron party and its allies Asom Gana Parishad (AGP) and Bodoland People's Front (BPF) had bagged 86 seats in the 2016 elections. It had also reaped the dividends of anti-incumbency and alleged large scale corruption during the previous Congress regime.

The scenario this time around, however, is completely different. The primary challenge for the BJP is tie up of Congress and minority-based All India United Democratic Front (AIUDF). These two former foes have formed a six-party grand alliance ahead of the polls.

The BJP had contested in 84 seats in the 2016 elections, bagging a vote share of 29.5 per cent, less than that of the 31 per cent of the Congress, which had won 26 seats out of the 122 contested seats.

The combined vote share of BJP-AGP-BPF was 41.9 per cent, which was less than that of the Congress-AIUDF's vote share of 44 per cent. In 17 constituencies where the BJP had won, the combined vote share of Congress and AIUDF was more than that of the saffron party. Also, the combined vote share of Congress and AIUDF was more than that of the AGP in two seats which were among the 14 seats that the regional party had won.

The Congress and the AIUDF did not have any alliance in the last election. Now that they would fight together and would have a seat-sharing arrangement, the split of anti-BJP votes is likely to be prevented



Secondly, the AGP had dished out a spectacular performance in the last election by riding piggyback on the BJP. It had won 14 of the 24 seats it contested. However, the birth of two regional forces — Asom Jatiya Parishad (AJP) and Raijor Dal — is expected to cost the AGP dear. That the BJP and the AGP are nervous following the AJP's emergence in the political spectrum is evident from their constant vitriol of the regional party.

Political scientist Akhil Ranjan Dutta of the Gauhati University said the Congress-AIUDF alignment will have an impact in Central Assam. "The AJP will target the votes of the AGP and the BJP. I feel they (AJP) will cause damage to both BJP and AGP to some extent. The AASU said it would support the AJP. If they do it, both BJP and AGP will suffer," Dutta observed. He said the BJP was distributing its resources in a targeted manner, particularly targeting the tea community.

"They have a substantive presence in tea areas. Not only are they distributing the resources, they are also giving overriding priority in political representation. Pallab Lochan Das, Rameswar Teli and Kamakhya Prasad Tassa, all of them from the tea community, are now MPs," Dutta said.

The five Lok Sabha constituencies of Tezpur, Lakhimpur, Dibrugarh, Jorhat and Kaliabor have 48 Assembly segments. The tea workers have a huge influence in 35-37 of them.

Rahul's visit to boost Congress campaign

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Guwahati

THE Assam poll campaign of Congress is likely to get a boost when party leader Rahul Gandhi visits the state on Sunday.

He will address a rally in Sivasagar before flying back to Delhi. His sister Priyanka Gandhi Vadra is slated to address some of the mega rallies the Congress has planned in the run up to the polls.

"We are expecting a large turnout at the Sivasagar rally," Pradesh Congress president Ripun Bora said.

The Congress hopes to gain from Rahul's fight against a number of issues including the Citizenship (Amendment) Act (CAA).

"Most regional leaders from the state, including Akhil Gogoi and Lurinjyoti Gogoi, had met him to appraise their concerns regarding the Citizenship (Amendment) Bill (CAB). Respecting the sentiments of the people of Assam, Rahul Gandhi and our party opposed the legislation in parliament. Had we been in power at the Centre in 2019, the CAB would not have become the CAA. Rahul Gandhi would have ensured it," Congress leader Bobeeta Sarma said.

The Congress is a national party with a regional outlook and who can best understand it than Rahul Gandhi whose father the late Rajiv Gandhi had signed the Assam Accord to bring peace in Assam, she added.

Rahul is visiting the state amid a two-week-long bus yatra that the Congress has launched from four places to "save Assam".

The bus campaign is criss-crossing the state with the party leaders meeting voters and discussing their grievances and issues.

"With these bus yatras, top leadership of the party shall fan out into the remotest corners of the state and discuss with the people the state's issues and problems," said Lok Sabha member Pradyut Bordoloi, who is the chairperson of the party's campaign committee. "Today Assam is facing a grave crisis. To save it from this crisis, we have to go to the people for a new imagination of our future," he said.

Judgment in variance with farm stir order

THE order on the review petitions on the Shaheen Bagh protest judgment appears to be at variance with what the court held on the farm protests, which have been going on for over two months now, outside Delhi.

During the hearing on farm protests, CJI S A Bobde vouched for the right to protest and had in its order said: "We clarify that this court will not interfere with the protest in question. Indeed the right to protest is part of a fundamental right and can as a matter of fact, be exercised subject to public order. There can certainly be no impediment in the exercise of such rights as long as it is non-violent and does not result in damage to the life and properties of other citizens. We are of the view at this stage that the farmers' protest should be allowed to continue without impediment and without any breach of peace either by the protesters or the police."

The October ruling came in the context of the protests held against the CAA in South Delhi's Shaheen Bagh area.

Funds for Ram temple cross ₹1,500-cr mark

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

THE biggest nationwide donation drive launched to raise funds for the proposed Ram temple in Ayodhya has led to a contribution of more than ₹1,500 crore, said Swami Govind Dev Giri, treasurer of Shree Ram Janmabhoomi Teerth Kshetra Trust. The Samarpan Nidhi now has an amount of ₹1,511 crore, he said.

The VHP and RSS had together set up teams of volunteers who, with the undertaking of the temple trust and coupons of ₹10, ₹100 and ₹1,000, had been collecting the donations from every class of society across the country. The temple trust treasurer said people from all communities and age have generously donated. "If children have donated from their piggy banks, labourers, beggars, vendors, rickshaw pullers, all have made the donations to the best of their capability. "From east to west and north to south, people of all castes, creed, faith and religion have made donations towards the temple construction," said Swami Govind Dev Giri.

He said the Samarpan Nidhi was being deposited in the temple trust accounts at State Bank of India, Bank of Baroda and Punjab National Bank, by over 37,000 volunteers.

"The activists are bringing the donations collected from remote villages and depositing the same in the trust's bank accounts. The trust had got over 13 crore coupons of ₹10, ₹100 and ₹1,000 printed before commencing the drive. But the coupon have ended in many states," said Swami Govind Dev Giri.

The fund raising drive would end on February 27.

Shah assures J&K statehood with a rider

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

UNION Minister for Home Affairs Amit Shah told the Lok Sabha on Saturday that statehood to Jammu and Kashmir would be restored but only after development is put back on track. The Lok Sabha passed the J&K Reorganisation (Amendment) Act, which seeks to merge the existing cadre of the Union Territory with AGMUT (Arunachal Pradesh, Goa, Mizoram and UT).

Congress floor leader Adhir Ranjan Chowdhury and the Biju Janata Dal (BJD) leader Bhartruhari Mahtab questioned the government coming with the ordinance when the budget session of parliament was set to commence in a few days. The Bill, which has already been approved by the Rajya Sabha, will replace the ordinance promulgated on January 7 this year.

"Full statehood for J&K will definitely be granted, but first the task is to put the development work back on track," said Shah in his reply to the discussion.

Shah rejected the contention of the J&K National Conference member Hasnain Masoodi that constitutional morality warranted the government refraining from bringing an amendment bill to the J&K Reorganisation Act since the matter was sub-judice.

Trust deficit with China remains, says strategist

BALA CHAUHAN @Bengaluru

THE disengagement by Indian and Chinese armies at the Line of Actual Control (LAC) in the Pangong Tso area in eastern Ladakh has begun, but can India trust its neighbour?

"Not really," said former additional secretary, Cabinet Secretariat and President, Centre for China Analysis and Strategy, Jayadeva Ranade. "Every claim of withdrawal from the Chiese side needs to be verified and re-verified," he told The New Sunday Express.

Both the armies started the process of initial disengagement on Wednesday, a day before Defence Minister Rajnath Singh, briefing the Rajya Sabha, gave details of both sides moving out of friction points along the LAC.

"The disengagement at the LAC is a tentative and first step to reduce chances of conflict between the two armies, where they are eyeball-to-eyeball against the backdrop of distrust for China. The Chinese cannot be trusted. We have to be very watchful of what they do when summer comes," he said.

"As long as the Chinese don't go back to the pre-April 2020 position, we will remain in suspense. The disengagement gives us an opportunity to prepare for their next course of action," he added.

Ranade pointed out that while India has made its stand clear on the process and conditions for disengagement, there has been no word from across the border. "Why is President Xi Jinping quiet on the disengagement? Unless he can show to his people that China has gained from this nine-month long standoff at the LAC, his position can be weakened. In 2017, after the Doklam standoff, the reaction from China was immediate. They were very upset. There has been no reaction from China on the disengagement," he said.

Ranade commended the Defence Minister for giving details in Parliament. "I am glad the Defence Minister spelt out the Indian territory under illegal occupation. This is significant because now when the two sides meet on the border issue, they will figure prominently. It will be a long LAC," said Ranade. He said that on the face of it, China agreed to disengage after it realised that India has "resisted their sustained pressure".

No increase in power bills this year

Soon electricity will become slightly cheaper in the city as the Engineering Department of the Chandigarh Administration has submitted a proposal for not changing the power tariff for the 2021-22 financial year to the Joint Electricity Regulatory Commission (JERC). The submission was made in the annual revenue requirement and tariff petition for 2021-22 submitted to the JERC. Due to bimonthly billing, consumers are paying a surcharge of four per cent on the total bill. If the JERC wants to retain the bimonthly billing, surcharge due to late payment would be granted at two per cent per cycle instead of the present monthly calculation. A demand in this direction has already been submitted by the members of the Indian Citizens' Forum.

Central scheme abandoned due to land cost

The Chandigarh Housing Board (CHB) has decided against constructing houses under the Pradhan Mantri Awas Yojana, the housing for all scheme of the Centre, due to high land cost. The board has intimated the Union government about their decision and given the reason. The Administration had written to the Ministry of Home Affairs to acquire 104 acres at ` 3.1 crore per acre for the construction of 10,132 flats under the scheme. But the MHA wrote back that land could not be acquired below the market rate ` 30 crore per acre. This amount would be too high for implementing the scheme.

The Rose Festival Committee constituted by the municipal corporation to celebrate the 49th Rose Festival has made a decision in this regard. The upgradation works will include laying flower beds and landscaping. Due to the prevailing pandemic conditions, the committee has decided to hold a symbolic Rose Festival from February 26 to 28 and also decided to honour the Resident Welfare Associations and social organisations who have been engaged in the field of social service during the Covid-19 period.

US to let in over 25K seeking asylum forced to wait in Mexico by Trump

A major step towards dismantling former president's policies to reduce immigration stress

WASHINGTON

THE Biden administration on Friday announced plans for tens of thousands of people who are seeking asylum and have been forced to wait in Mexico under a Trump-era policy to be allowed into the US while their cases wind through immigration courts.

The first wave of an estimated 25,000 asylum-seekers with active cases in the "Remain in Mexico" program will be allowed into the United States on February 19, authorities said. They plan to start slowly, with two border crossings each processing up to 300 people a day and a third crossing taking fewer numbers.

President Joe Biden's administration declined to publicly identify the three crossings out of fear it may encourage a rush of people, but US Rep. Henry Cuellar, a Texas Democrat, said officials told him that they are Brownsville and El Paso in Texas, and San Diego's San Ysidro crossing.

The move is a major step toward dismantling one of former President Donald Trump's most consequential policies to deter asylum-seekers from coming to the US. About 70,000 asylum-seekers were enrolled in the program officially called Migrant Protection Protocols since it was introduced in January 2019.

On Biden's first day in office, the Homeland Security Department suspended the policy for new arrivals. Since then, some asylum-seekers picked up at the border have been released in the US with notices to appear in court.

Biden seeks to shut Guantanamo prison

US President Joe Biden wants to close the Guantanamo Bay prison for terror suspects before the end of his term, the White House said on Friday, echoing an unfulfilled campaign promise from Barack Obama's administration

Biden is quickly making good on a campaign promise to end the policy, which the Trump administration said was critical to reversing a surge of asylum-seekers that peaked in 2019. But the policy also exposed people to violence in Mexican border cities and made it extremely difficult for them to find lawyers and communicate with courts about their cases.

Asylum-seekers will be released with notices to appear in court in cities close to or in their final destinations, typically with family, administration officials said.

Homeland Security said the move "should not be interpreted as an opening for people to migrate irregularly to the United States." Administration officials say the vast majority of people who cross the border illegally are quickly expelled under a public health order that Trump put in place in March amid the coronavirus pandemic

Migrants in Mexico hoping to reach the US welcomed the policy change in Washington.

"Our miracle is on the verge of becoming reality," said Nicol Bueso, a 19-year-old Honduran who has been living in a shelter at US border said.

Biden keeps pressure on China over Covid's origins

WASHINGTON

CONTINUING former US president Donald Trump's criticism of China over the coronavirus outbreak, Joe Biden's administration on Saturday expressed "deep concerns" about Beijing's response during the early days of the pandemic.

National security advisor Jake Sullivan called on China to make available its data from the earliest days of the outbreak. "We have deep concerns about the way in which the early findings of the Covid-19 investigation were communicated and questions about the process used to reach them," Sullivan said on Saturday.

WHO demands more data

Walking a diplomatic tightrope, with the US urging a "robust" probe and China warning against politicising the issue, WHO sought more data from Beijing on Saturday.

"We want more data. We have asked for more data," Peter Ben Embarek, who headed WHO's expert mission to Wuhan, said. Specifically, the team is seeking access to raw data about earlier cases of illnesses, including pneumonia, flu and fever, that could conceivably have been Covid. Agencies

Draghi sworn in as Italy's new PM after month-long political turmoil

ROME

FORMER head of European Central Bank Mario Draghi was formally sworn in as Italy's new prime minister on Saturday, against the backdrop of the deadly pandemic and a crippling recession.

The appointment of the 73-year-old politician known as "Super Mario" capped weeks of political instability for the country still in the grips of the health crisis that has killed more than 93,000 people since March.

"I swear to be loyal to the Republic," recited Draghi, as he stood before President Sergio Mattarella in the ornate presidential palace in a ceremony that was televised live.

Members of his new cabinet, who include technocrats, veteran politicians and ministers held over from the previous Conte government, each took the oath of office.

Draghi was parachuted in by Mattarella after the previous centre-left coalition under premier Giuseppe Conte collapsed, leading Italy rudderless amid the worst recession since World War II.

After assembling a broad-based coalition, on Friday night he formally accepted the post of premier, publicly revealing the new cabinet for the first time. On Wednesday, Draghi will be presented to the Senate, the upper house of parliament, followed by the lower Chamber of Deputies on Thursday for a confidence vote that will give the final official blessing to his government.

Following the swearing-in, Conte greeted his successor in Chigi Palace, the prime minister's office, during a short ceremony, receiving sustained applause from civil servants in the courtyard before departing in an official vehicle. Like other EU countries, Italy has also fallen behind in its vaccination programme, blaming delivery delays. AFP

BIG CHALLENGES AWAIT POPULAR POLITICIAN

Mario Draghi faces a major challenge in turning around Italy's devastated economy, as the coronavirus pandemic continues to take hundreds of lives each day

LOOK OUT FOR SIGNS OF DISSENT

Italy has been without a fully functioning government for almost a month since the collapse of Giuseppe Conte's previous administration

President Sergio Mattarella asked Draghi to form a new government on February 3, and the respected economist has spent the last nine days assembling the widest possible majority in parliament

Draghi's priorities will become harder to execute if he faces the same internal dissent that brought down the last government under Giuseppe Conte

For now, he has behind him a coalition of virtually all of Italy's parties in parliament, from the left-leaning Democratic Party to the far-right, populist League led by opposition leader Matteo Salvini

FOCUS ON ECONOMY AND HEALTH

Italy is currently in its worst recession since World War II, brought about by the pandemic. But growth was already moribund before the coronavirus crisis, exacerbated by the highest debt-to-GDP ratio in the eurozone after Greece

After a promising start in December, Italy's vaccine drive has slowed, which politicians have blamed on supply shortages. Only 1.2 million people have received two doses of Covid-19 vaccine, out of a population of 60 million

OVER 70% APPROVAL RATING

A poll published last Sunday by the La Repubblica said Draghi had overtaken outgoing premier Giuseppe Conte as Italy's most popular politician, with a 71% popularity rating

> He is the classic civil servant who adapts to different political circumstances ... which does not mean he does not have his own principles and values

TRUMP'S TRIAL

Deal reached not to allow witnesses after Senate fight

WASHINGTON

IN a day of surprising twists and turns, the US Senate on Saturday reached a deal that prevented witness testimony in Donald Trump's impeachment trial, after initially voting to allow witnesses.

Instead of calling witnesses, the House impeachment managers and Trump's defence team agreed to admit into the record a statement by Republican congresswoman Jamie Herrera Beutler about a phone call in which House Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy implored then-President Trump to call off the rioters.

The agreement cleared the way for the beginning of closing arguments in the trial, and a final vote on whether to convict Trump is now expected later on Saturday.

Earlier in the day, the was thrown into confusion as US Senators voted to consider hearing witnesses, a step that could significantly extend the proceedings and delay a vote on whether the former president incited the deadly Capitol insurrection.

The last-minute fight over witnesses followed Friday night revelations from a Republican House lawmaker about a heated phone call on the day of the riot between Trump and House Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy that Democrats say establishes Trump's indifference to the violence.

At issue at first on Saturday was whether to subpoena Rep. Jaime Herrera Beutler of Washington state, one of 10 Republicans to vote for Trump's impeachment in the House.

She said in a statement late Friday that Trump rebuffed a plea from McCarthy to call off the rioters.

Democrats consider it key corroborating evidence that confirms the president's "willful dereliction of duty as commander in chief."

The proceedings came to an abrupt halt less than an hour after getting underway, with senators taken aback by the unexpected development huddling on the floor of the chamber while leaders spoke to clerks at the dais. Agencies

Covid could be indefinite, EU health expert says

STOCKHOLM

THE head of the EU's disease control agency warned Friday that the novel coronavirus could last indefinitely even as global infections slowed by nearly half in the last month and vaccine rollouts gathered pace in parts of the world.

In an interview with AFP, ECDC chief Andrea Ammon urged European countries in particular not to drop their guard against a virus that "seems very well adapted to humans" and may require experts to tweak vaccines over time, as is the case with the seasonal flu.

"So we should be prepared that it will remain with us," according to Ammon, head of the Stockholm-based European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control.

After the latest harsh wave of a pandemic that started in China more than a year ago, glimmers of hope flickered as an AFP database showed the rate of new Covid-19 infections has slowed by 44.5 per cent worldwide over the past month.

More than 107 million people have been infected worldwide and nearly 2.4 million have died from Covid-19.

But disease experts warned that vaccines won't end the pandemic unless all countries receive doses in a fast and fair manner.

Writing in an open letter published in the Lancet medical journal, the authors of the study said with vaccine stockpiling in wealthier countries, "it could be years before the coronavirus is brought under control at a global level."

The warning came as US vaccine maker Moderna said it was seeking clearance with regulators around the world to put 50 per cent more coronavirus vaccine into each of its vials as a way to quickly boost current supply levels. AFP

Fourth Covid vaccine gets green light

Pakistan has approved the emergency use of a second Chinese Covid-19 vaccine, making it the fourth drug to be cleared by the regulatory authority to tackle the deadly virus, which has claimed over 12,000 lives in the country. Chinese company Cansino Biologics Inc's vaccine was approved by the Drug Regulatory Authority of Pakistan (Drap) on Friday. Drap officials said that after its approval for emergency use, the supply of the doses will start in a few weeks. Cansino Bio is the only vaccine for which Pakistan conducted a clinical trial, with around 18,000 volunteers participating from across the country. The analysis, which was released by the Independent Data Monitoring Committee (IDMC), showed that it had 74.48 per cent efficacy rate in preventing symptomatic cases and 100 per cent in preventing severe disease.

Pro-democracy protesters return to the streets

Thai pro-democracy protesters scaled a massive Bangkok monument Saturday, draping it in a crimson cloth and calling for the kingdom to abolish its draconian royal defamation laws. Momentum for the youth-led movement calling for an overhaul to Premier Prayut Chan-O-Cha's government has slowed in recent months, due to a fresh wave of coronavirus infections in Thailand. But the recent detention of four prominent leaders has spurred protesters into action, bringing hundreds back to the Democracy Monument intersection in Bangkok's historic quarter

Teen's rape, murder sparks protest

Hundreds of Nepalis staged a mock funeral procession in the capital Kathmandu on Friday after the rape and murder of a teenage girl drew attention to a rise in sexual assault cases. Bhagirathi Bhatta, 17, went missing on Thursday last week while she was returning home from school. Her body was found a day later in a gorge near her village in Baitadi district in western Nepal. An inital probe by police found that she had been raped and then strangled. At the protest in Kathmandu, demonstrators dressed in white mourning clothes carried a young woman on a bamboo stretcher to symbolise the victims who lose their lives to such violent crimes. Others followed, calling for an end to violence against women and justice for victims as the marched

Indian-origin woman to challenge António Guterres for top UN post

NEW YORK

AN Indian-origin employee at the UN has announced her candidacy to be its next Secretary-General, the first person to throw her hat in the ring against incumbent Antonio Guterres, who is seeking a second five-year term beginning January 2022 as chief of the world organisation.

Arora Akanksha, 34, working as an audit coordinator for the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP), said she will run for the post of the world's top diplomat and launched her campaign #AroraForSG this month.

"People in my position aren't supposed to stand up to the ones in charge. We are supposed to wait our turn, hop on the hamster wheel, go to work, keep our heads down and accept that the world is the way it is," Akanksha said in a two and half minute campaign video posted online.

The video shows Akanksha walking inside the sprawling UN headquarters, as her voiceover says that people who have come before her have failed to hold the UN accountable.

"For 75 years, the UN has not fulfilled its promise to the world—refugees haven't been protected, humanitarian aid has been minimal, and technology and innovation has been on the back-burner. We deserve a UN that leads progress," she said.

"That is why I am running for the Secretary-General of the United Nations. I refuse to be a by-stander. I will not accept this is the best the UN can do," she said in the video.

Last month Guterres, 71, had confirmed he will seek a second five-year term as chief of the world organisation.

Guterres's first term ends on December 31 this year and the term of the next Secretary-General will begin on January 1, 2022. PTI

Protesters block arrests of activists in Myanmar

WASHINGTON

OPPOSITION to Myanmar's new military regime intensified on Saturday as spontaneous neighbourhood watch groups mobilised to thwart arrests of activists and the UN demanded the release of ousted leader Aung San Suu Kyi.

Since taking Suu Kyi and her top allies into custody, troops have stepped up arrests of civil servants, doctors and others joining strikes to call on the generals to relinquish power.

Crowds defied overnight curfews to mass on the streets as night fell, hours after finishing a seventh straight day of rallies, following rumours that police were launching a fresh wave of arrests.

One group swarmed a hospital in the city of Pathein on rumours that a popular local doctor would be taken, chanting a Buddhist prayer urging protection from harm.

"If I have problems, I will ask for your help," Than Min Htut told the group who had come to aid him, flashing the three-finger salute that has come to symbolise resistance to the coup. Than Min Htut said on Saturday he was still free and would continue participating in a civil disobedience campaign opposing military rule.

People in Yangon skirted a junta ban on Facebook to organise neighbourhood watch groups that warned of rumoured arrests. "We didn't know who will be taken, but when we heard the sound, we went out to join our neighbours," said a storekeeper. AFP

Covid-19 didn't deter govt from taking up reforms for growth: FM

Sitharaman also said that the government may spend more on rural schemes, if required

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @New Delhi

FINANCE Minister Nirmala Sitharaman on Saturday said that the challenges of Covid-19 did not deter the government from undertaking reforms which are going to be necessary for sustaining India's long term growth. While there has been generous allotment for the rural schemes, Sitharaman said that the government will spend more, if required.

"We have managed to bend the (Covid) curve and as a result the revival of the economy looks a lot more sustainable. This Budget, therefore, gives the necessary impetus. We made many announcements and in the Budget have kept the pace with other reforms," Sitharaman said, while replying to debate on the Budget in the Lok Sabha. Highlighting the Centre's increased spending for the MNREGA scheme in the pandemic-hit year, Sitharaman said the government will spend more for the scheme this year if needed.

Taking on the Opposition, Sitharaman said unlike the Congress party which followed socialist, communist and licence quota raj policy from 1948 until 1991 when it ushered in "reforms under duress", the BJP government has laid out well thought out reforms to support wealth creators and MSMEs while respecting honest taxpayers and citizens. The BJP's belief in Indian economy and private enterprise has been consistent including the disinvestment in the Public Sector Enterprises policy which does not allow for any kind of elementary approach to it, instead it states the path forward, the finance minister said. "Our belief in India, in indian businesses and in Indian economic strength has been consistent from Jan Sangh to BJP to now BJP going in a steady line of belief in Indian enterprises, give them the maximum freedom, give them the maximum respect that they so deserve," Sitharaman said in reply to the opposition party, which accused the government of favouring "crony capitalism".

In defence of aggressive divestment policy, the finance minister said that "the government considered all advice, but designed the measures that our own industries suggested.

Depressed real interest rates are likely to stay till FY22

SUNITHA NATTI

SOFTENING retail inflation eases pricing pressure, but it's likely to haunt households as real interest rates are unlikely to turn positive even next fiscal. Retail inflation has been decelerating consistently to 4.06 per cent in January from 4.6 per cent in December, still the real return for savers is negative as deposit rates are at multi-year lows. For instance, SBI is offering 2.9 per cent on savings accounts and 5.2 per cent on fixed deposits of under ₹2 crore.

Even if the inflation print remains at the threshold 4 per cent in the next few months, unless deposit rates rise, real returns will be negative.

This could disincentivise savings and prompt savers to either spend more or opt for riskier products. When inflation shot up in Q4 FY20, real interest return on bank deposits, as measured by the Reserve Bank of India's (RBI) weighted average domestic term deposit rate, turned negative last fiscal itself. It widened significantly starting June 2020 when inflation took a turn for the worse and remained above RBI's upper tolerance threshold of 6 per cent for six straight months.

Data for the lockdown months of April and May were not published. Between June and October 2020, the negative real return widened from 23 bps to a staggering 195 bps. But with retail consumer prices falling near the central bank's threshold rate of 4-6 per cent, it gives comfort to markets even though real returns are nowhere near the positive territory.

According to SBI Research, negative real interest rates have been the new normal as household savings continued to rise in India despite lower rates on deposits at a time of intensified cash conservation and falling consumption. Its empirical analysis showed that in the past two decades, a change of at least 2 per cent in real deposit rates was required to change the savings rate by 1 per cent. Small changes in deposit rates hardly make any difference and hence it's always costly to keep real interest rates at high levels for a significant period, it noted.

Incremental small savings deposits too have significantly slowed down as a percentage of incremental deposits with banks in the current fiscal, with people parking more money in liquid bank deposits rather than locking them in financial savings, according to SBI. Last week, RBI lowered its inflation projections for the current quarter at 5.2 per cent saying it has returned within the tolerance band.

For the first half of the next fiscal, it's estimated at 5.4-5 per cent and for the third quarter of FY22 at 4.3 per cent.

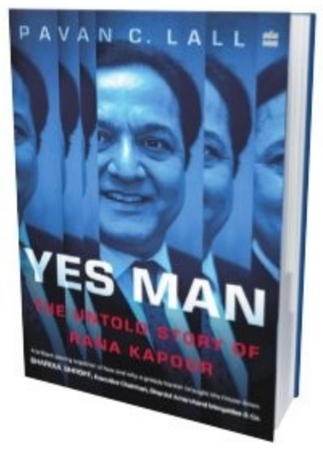
YES MAN: THE RISE AND FALL OF RANA KAPOOR

GURBIR SINGH



ASK any business journalist who knew Rana Kapoor, and the abiding image of the ex-Yes Bank chief he will replay is of a man who pushed himself and his achievements at all costs. This writer, once at a journalism awards event supported by Yes Bank, saw Rana Kapoor's public relations team grabbing in advance the two seats on either side of the chair reserved for the chief guest. At that event, the chief guest was the then Union Minister of Law and Justice, Kapil Sibal. On inquiry, the PR team leader revealed this was the standing instruction — Rana Kappor must be seated next to the chief guest, if he was a central minister.

The rise of Rana Kapoor is inextricably entwined with Yes Bank. The two launched when Yes Bank, two decades ago, got a banking license at a time when the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) was tight-fisted about allowing private sector banks. Known to very few, the initial promoter of the venture was not Rana Kapoor, but one Harkirat Singh, who had a proven track record at Grindlays and Deutsche Bank. He put together the package - the Dutch Rabobank, as lead investor, along with Rana Kapoor and his brother-in-law, an old school banker, Ashok Kapur.

Killer instinct

Rana Kapoor exhibited his killer instinct of eliminating competition early by removing all traces of his partners as soon as he could. First it was Harkirat Singh who was pushed out. In a press release announcing his exit in April 2003, Harkirat said: "My dream was to have a bank in the private sector which catered to rural India, with a social angle. Somewhere, all that changed."

Ashok Kapur had brought in Rana Kapoor, but as soon as Yes Bank began to fly, Rana got about eliminating Ashok Kapur's influence. As tragic fate would have it, Ashok Kapur was gunned down during the terror attack at the Oberoi Trident on November 26, 2008. But before the embers of his funeral pyre could die, Rana Kapoor set about excluding Kapur's wife, Madhu, and his daughter Shagun Kapur Gogia from their rights as investors and as claimants of a seat on the bank's board of directors.

After years of lobbying the RBI and the Yes Bank, the two ladies fought and won a stellar legal battle. The Bombay High Court ruled in their favour, restoring Madhu Kapur's position in the bank and rapping Rana Kapoor for playing the CEO bully.

These and other colourful tales of the rise and fall of Rana Kapoor are brought together in an easy-reading book: 'Yes Man - The untold story of Rana Kapoor' by Pavan C Lall. Full of anecdotes, Lall takes you through the early period of blistering growth of Yes Bank powered by Kapoor's insatiable ambition and a successful IPO. By 2015, the first cracks are seen, and 2-3 years later the bank is saddled with bad loans to companies like Jet, Cox & Kings and C G Power that were folding up. And then there is the final leg of the story of King Kong being forced out from Yes Bank in January 2020, and then the final ignominy of being arrested two months later for money laundering.

Through the book, Lall paints the picture of a banker not in step with his peers. He is not the quiet, understated guy in a grey suit, as most bankers are. In fact, he is loud about his achievements. Growth-at-any-cost is his mantra. He also quite brazenly feathers his own nest and that of his three daughters at the cost of the bank.

Personal greed

What we miss in the book though are an inside view. While there is plenty of anecdotal material from friends and foes, the reader would like to go beyond the journalistic piecing together of the action to understanding the real machinations inside the bank. Written from outside, there is also the problem of not being told the Rana Kapoor side of the story. As a reader, I was looking for Rana Kapoor as the family man — what was the relationship with his wife? And with his daughters, Radha, Rakhee and Roshni?

For instance, Lall's anecdotes on how Rana Kapoor insulted Ashok Kapur's wife, Madhu, at a party, and then turned a family patch-up meeting into a boorish round of expletive-hurling at Madhu and her daughter, speaks volumes about the banker's character.Also, what has been excellently pieced together is how a bank was driven to the ground by personal greed and ambition. Hidden behind bluster and PR charm, Rana Kapoor hid over Rs 40,000 crore of non-performing assets; and when it blew up, between August 2019 and September 2019, Yes Bank shareholders lost 84% of their share value as the stock went into a free fall from ₹366 to ₹60.

The big question the book leaves us with is: Why does the regulator - the Reserve Bank - begin to lock the stable door after the horse has bolted? Shagun Kapur Gogia, Ashok Kapur's daughter, had written more than 30 letters to the RBI piecing all the information together. Why was she ignored?

'Corridors in UP, TN will boost defence industries'

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @Chennai

DEFENCE Research and Development Organisation (DRDO) Chairman G Satheesh Reddy said on Saturday that the upcoming defence corridor projects in Uttar Pradesh and Tamil Nadu will give a fillip to the defence sector and it will create an eco-system for the defence-related industries to flourish in the country.

Speaking at the Business Excellence Award, organised by Andhra Chamber of Commerce (ACC), Reddy said the government has been taking initiatives to support the industries in a big way and encouraging them to come up with different innovative products. Many schemes have been launched by the government to also help the start-ups.

The DRDO chief noted that during such a time, the role of organisations like ACC becomes more important as they help in creating awareness. The Chamber organised the fifth edition of the programme virtually and five people were awarded for their contribution in the business field. These include Ponni Concessao for his contribution in the field of architecture, VMM Prasad (rural education), Pullela Gopichand (sports), Vinayak C. Hegana, founder and CEO of Shivar Naturals, (MSME category) and Suchitra Ella, joint MD Bharat Biotech International (Pharmaceuticals).

Parliamentary panel flags staff shortage

The DRDO's current manpower is grossly insufficient for committed research and development (R&D) projects, stated a report of the Parliamentary Standing Committee on Defence on Friday. In its reply to the committee, the Defence Ministry said the Ministry of Finance had on April 24 last year already approved the proposal to augment the manpower in DRDO by 436 posts.

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @New Delhi

TELECOM major Vodafone Idea Ltd's (Vi) cost optimisation drive seems to be paying off. The company's third quarter financials, released on Saturday, show that while its gross revenues still remain behind last year's levels, better operational efficiency and a stake sale in tower infra company Indus Towers has helped it pare down its losses. Meesho, Bharat Pe on funding spree, set to bag unicorn status

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @Bengaluru

IF India's start-up ecosystem proved to be resilient during a pandemic year, which saw the birth of 12 unicorns and a total investment of over $14 billion, this year is going to be even better. 2021 has already seen insurtech start-up, digit insurance entering the coveted unicorn club. Social commerce platform Meesho and digital payments start-up, Bharat Pe, may be the next entrants in the unicorn club as investments continue to pour in despite the Chinese funding block.

Between February 1 and 6, the start-ups have received nearly $322 million led by Bharat Pe, which has raised $108 million in funding at a valuation of $900 million. Existing investor, Coatue management led the funding round in which Insight Partners, Ribbit Capital, Steadview Capital, Beenext, Amplo and Sequoia Capital also participated. Bharat Pe will join the likes of Phone Pe, RazorPay and Paytm which focus on digital payments in B2C as well as B2B verticals. Bharat Pe's valuation has risen by $500 million since its last funding round in February 2020. Ashneer Grover, co-founder and CEO, Bharat Pe said with the fundraise, the company will continue deepening the credit ecosystem for the merchants. "We want to stay aligned with categories in financial services that will provide us margins, contributing to our growth," Grover added.

On the other hand, Meesho is likely to be SoftBank's next investment bet in India after the Japanese tech fund giant led a $150 million funding round in edtech firm Unacademy, marking its entry into the unicorn club. Facebook, Naspers and Sequoia Capital, were some of the earliest backers of Meesho.

Conte apologises for reacting to Juventus 'provocation'

Inter Milan coach Antonio Conte apologised on Saturday for "reacting badly to provocation" in the midweek Italian Cup match at Juventus. Ex-Juve boss Conte appeared to show the finger to his former club's directors at half-time, while footage from broadcaster RAI at the end of the match showed the hosts' chairman Andrea Agnelli apparently telling Conte to "shut up".

ROHIT THE TURNMINATOR

Opener's brisk century & Rahane's fifty on spin-conducive track give India early edge

VENKATA KRISHNA B @Chennai

REPRODUCING the pitch at the nets by creating rough areas to give spinners that extra grip and zip, batsmen stretching forward in defence, using their feet to smother the turn, sweeping, et al. These were some of the drills Indian batsmen went about during the three-day break before the second Test. The perks of playing at home is that you can mould the texture of the surface to your liking. But the perils of backfiring always lingers.

India's primary objective was to put some run on board, something that would matter now after batting first on a wicket that has shown glimpses of 'rank turner'. Those drills and the urge to score paid off on Day 1 as opener Rohit Sharma scored 161 and India 300 for 6. He also shared a 162-run partnership with Ajinkya Rahane for the fourth wicket to rescue India after a slight wobble after losing Cheteshwar Pujara and Virat Kohli in space of six balls.

If Root's knock in the first Test set up England a perfect platform, Rohit has given India one here. On a pitch where other batsmen were not in complete control, Rohit played an innings to savour. Natural shot-making at times and at times cautious, Rohit paced his innings well. He slowed down in the second session (scored only 52 runs) as India needed some stability.

Even though India lost Shubman Gill, Rohit got runs at a brisk pace. They had devised their strategy around it, where Rohit and Gill were given the licence to go for the shots and not let England attack settle.

"We wanted to make sure we used our feet a lot more and made sure we swept the ball. When you play on turning pitches, you have to be proactive. Getting on top of the bowler was crucial," Rohit said.

England sensed the pitch had turn on offer and brought in Jack Leach as early as the ninth over, but instead of letting him build pressure, gave him a spread outfield. It ensured Rohit and Pujara rotated the strike as the opener brought up his 50 off just 47 balls. It is hard to contain Rohit, especially when he is in the mood to play shots. Although all his Test tons have come at home, six out of seven centuries have been 150-plus tells you how much he feeds on such surfaces.

There's another side to Rohit and Rahane's partnership. Coming into the Test, both were under pressure after a series of low scores. But the composure they showed in the second session stood out. "When you play on a pitch like that which might do something every ball, you have to look to score runs by rotating strike and using your feet," Rohit said.

For a side that doesn't have batsmen who sweep, Rohit is an exception and he showed how productive that shot can be to have in armoury.

"Sweep is something that can frustrate a bowler if you are playing that shot well. If you play that, there is not much a bowler can do or pitch can do. It was a percentage shot to play because he was bowling outside off-side and lbw doesn't come into play. When he bowled on stumps, I wanted to use my feet and cover the spin. Get my feet towards the ball," said the opener.

Since 2018, no one has scored more tons than Rohit in all formats.

Rohit Sharma is the second player after Chris Gayle to hit a century against England in all formats.

THIRD UMPIRE IN FOCUS

Third umpire Anil Chaudhary came under focus as couple of his decisions raised eyebrows. When Rohit Sharma was batting on 159, England wicketkeeper Ben Foakes appealed for stumping off Jack Leach. As the on-field umpire sent it upstairs, replays didn't show any conclusive evidence that any part of Rohit's foot was behind the crease. But Chaudhary let him bat.

DRS MISS

England called for DRS after Rahane edged one to the short-leg fielder off Leach. Chaudhary rushed with to the decision (n.o) after there was no contact between the bat and the ball. But there was one issue. He hadn't played the replay in full as the ball brushed Rahane's glove. The match-referee reinstated the review back to England.

Fans back in stands, Chepauk party alive

SWAROOP SWAMINATHAN @Chennai

"BROADY, Broady (Stuart Broad)," went the shouts from upper tier of the I stand. Fielding at fine leg when Rishabh Pant was on strike, the pacer turned back. As soon as he made eye contact with the group who was calling him, they went: "Yuvi, Yuvi (Yuvraj Singh had hit Broad for six consecutive sixes at the 2007 World T20). Broad acknowledged it with a wry smile.

Out of all the passages of play on Day 1 of the second Test, this one movement re-emphasised the one main difference between the first and the second Tests: fans in the stands.

It also served as a reminder that even if this is the era of artificial noise and piped music, nothing comes close to the real thing. Centurion Rohit Sharma, who gave the city's 15,000 or so spectators an early Valentine's Day gift, concurred. "It was great fun to have them at the ground," he said. "It is something that livens up the whole atmosphere. The intensity was low from both sides in the first game. It has been a long time since they have come and watched a game in India. Happy they enjoyed some good cricket."

They did enjoy. Harish R said it was just fantastic being back after months of being 'cooped up in the house'. "I thought it was a fantastic day's play," he said. "Just showed how much I missed the feel and thrill of watching all this and how much I had taken it for granted. I don't think I will do that again."

The thing that stood out for Aparaajith V was Chennai's enduring love for Test cricket. "Even if we have been starved of live sport for awhile, I wasn't sure we would respond like this. So really delighted that the appetite for Tests is still there."

That Chennai turned out in big numbers shouldn't be a surprise. Even normally, fans tend to genuflect in the general direction of the MA Chidambaram Stadium, Chennai's most popular sporting cathedral. Taking that into consideration, Saturday was no different. Especially in this year of all years, where uncertainty, anxiety, disease and death have ravaged the city. The coronavirus pandemic made its presence for the first time in the early week of March. Since then, its been ever present, like an unwelcome visitor that has threatened to derail the entire health infrastructure.

When the city went into lockdown last March, fans had just finished attending a few training sessions of Chennai Super Kings. Since then, some have lost their loved ones, while others have lost jobs. Some have had to seek therapy, while others have stayed put indoors, with only a bottle of sanitiser for company. Watching a cricket match from the stands isn't going to change any of the above. But it will have given all of them the opportunity to smile and laugh. To clap and applaud. And, ultimately, that's what they did on Saturday. Clapped. And Applauded.

INDIA TAKE CHARGE AFTER EARLY JITTERS

ASHOK VENUGOPAL @Chennai

DURING one of his chats with this daily, India great Sunil Gavaskar had said that if an opening batsman gives the first half an hour to the bowler, he can dominate the rest of the day's play. Rohit Sharma did just that.

His seventh hundred helped India recover from 86 for 3 and end the opening day's play at 300 for 6 in 88 overs against England in the second Test at Chepauk on Saturday. The pitch is expected to deteriorate as the game wears on. Taking that into account, it was a top effort by Rohit & Co on Saturday.

After Shubman Gill fell cheaply early on, Rohit along with Pujara raised 85 runs for the second wicket. The pair played with lot of understanding. But, just when it seemed like they'd go on to post a big stand, Pujara fell after a poor shot selection. The Saurashtra man was caught in the slips by Ben Stokes off Jack Leach.

Just moments later, India suffered yet another blow. Virat Kohli was castled without opening his account. The India captain failed to read an off break from Moeen Ali. However, Rohit, who hit 161, stood firm, garnering runs at a brisk pace. "It was a splendid innings from Rohit. He played positively and did not curb his natural game. He timed the ball well today and was spot on in his shot selection," said former India captain K Srikkanth.

Another reason for Rohit's success was the slight adjustment he made in his technique. "Rohit played a lot more straighter. He played his shots close to the body. He came well behind the line of the ball and had the time to play his shots at will," said Srikkanth.

Rohit's remarkable innings came to an end when he miscued a sweep shot off Leach to Moeen Ali at deep square leg. Rohit and Ajinkya Rahane added 162 runs in 310 balls for the fourth wicket. Rahane silenced his critics with a gritty effort of 67. Rohit and Rahane's effort has left an ideal platform for the lower-order batsmen. Rishabh Pant, who's batting at 33, could return on Day 2 to pile on more runs for the hosts.

Nadal digs deep to enter Rd 4

World No 2 Rafael Nadal accelerated his pursuit of a record 21st Grand Slam title on Saturday with a testing victory over Cameron Norrie in an Australian Open battle of the left-handers. The Spanish second seed has altered his service motion due to lower-back tightness, but it didn't stop him. Britain's 69th-ranked Norrie proved a tougher assignment, with Nadal pressed much harder before emerging a 7-5, 6-2, 7-5 winner in an empty Rod Laver Arena as Melbourne went into a five-day coronavirus lockdown.

BOPANNA BOWS OUT: India's Rohan Bopanna and his Chinese partner lost 4-6, 4-6 to the pair of American Bethanie Mattek-Sands and United Kingdom's Jamie Murray in the mixed doubles opener. Bopanna's exit brought an end to India's campaign.

Observer submits report critical of EFI functioning

FIROZ MIRZA @Chennai

A REPORT submitted by SY Quraishi to the Delhi High Court has raised questions over the functioning of the Equestrian Federation of India (EFI). Quraishi, the former chief election commissioner of India, was appointed observer by the court to oversee the functioning of the federation in 2019.

The report submitted on February 9, a day before the scheduled hearing in a writ petition filed by the Rajasthan Equestrian Association against its parent body, broadly divided the issues related to EFI's functioning into three categories. The critical report meant the EFI through its lawyer sought more time from the court to submit its response. The next hearing is on March 3.

The report, which is in possession of this daily, said that the issues noticed in the functioning of the respondent No. 1 (EFI) can broadly be categorised as 1) Violation of the requirement of the National Sports Development Code of India, 2011, 2) Undemocratic functioning and administration of the federation, 3) Improper administration of the sport and sportspersons.

Concluding the report, Quraishi said that with the limited role as an observer, he is not in a position to ensure that the present administration duly protects the interest of the sport, the sportspersons, as well as the states and union territories associations adequately.

Double joy for Priyanka & Sandeep

SRINIDHI PR @Chennai

HOW things can change in a year. Racewalker Priyanka Gowswami had been mulling about a missed opportunity, having failed to cement the Tokyo Olympics berth during last year's national championships. Shy of her goal by 36 seconds then, it was back to the drawing board after that. Amid pandemic, she had to be patient and had to remain level-headed to realise her Olympic dream. On Saturday, her patience paid off as her dream became a reality. What's more, Priyanka did it in style.

It was double joy for the Meerut athlete when she erased the women's national record during the national open race walking championships in Ranchi and also qualified for the Games. Along with her, Sandeep Kumar and Rahul Kumar also booked Olympic berths, in the first major athletics meet since lockdown. The tally of racewalkers who have qualified for the Games has now swelled to five.

The 24-year-old clocked 1:28:45 on Saturday — breaching the Olympic qualification mark of 1:30:00. "I feel happy to have qualified for the Tokyo event with a good mark," said Priyanka. She believes the surprise hiatus due to the pandemic was a blessing in disguise and it propelled her to push hard. With just four-five weeks' break in the last year, the rigorous practice was the reason she achieved her target, she said.

"The focus was on endurance training. As far as racewalking is concerned, you don't have to fret over strength training. My only target was to finish it in 1:28 minutes. And I did it."
